Leading Marines 1995 Leading Marines describes a leadership philosophy that reflects our traditional strengths as an institution and attempts to define the very ethos of being a Marine. The second chapter focuses on the foundations of Marine Corps leadership, our core values and the leadership traits and principles that are taught to every Marine. The third chapter helps Marines understand some of the challenges to leading and discusses how Marines can overcome them. The epilogue summarizes our discussion of Leading Marines and asks Marines to spend time in reflection looking closely at their legacy at who and what we are and at who and what they are. Pages 2-3

Leading Marines 2005 The most important responsibility in our Corps is leading Marines. If we expect Marines to lead and if we expect Marines to follow, we must provide the education of the heart and of the mind to win on the battlefield and in the barracks in war and in peace. Traditionally that education has taken many forms, often handed down from Marine to Marine by word of mouth and by example, our actions. As Marines every day must embody the legacy of those who went before us, their memorial to us, their teaching: compassion, courage, sacrifice, optimism, humor, humility, commitment, perseverance, love, guts, and glory. It is the pattern for our daily lives. This manual attempts to capture those heritages of the Marine Corps. Its approach to leading is not prescriptive because there is no formula for leadership; it is not all-inclusive because to capture all that it is to be a Marine or to lead, Marines defies pen and paper. Instead, it is intended to provide those charged with leading Marines a sense of the legacy they have inherited and to help them come to terms with their own personal leadership style. The indispensable condition of Marine Corps leadership is action and attitude, not words. As one Marine leader said, "Don't tell me how good you are; show me." Marines have been leading for over 200 years and today continue leading around the globe, whether in the field or in garrison, at the front or in the rear. Marines adapting the time-honored values, traditions, customs, and history of our Corps to their generation will continue to lead and continue to win. This manual comes to life through the voices, writings, and examples of not one person but many thousands of Americans who have borne and still bear the title of Marine. Their testimony that "once a Marine, always a Marine" and "Semper Paratus" are phrases that define our essence. It is to those who know and to those who will come to know this extraordinary way of life that this book is dedicated. C. E. Mundy, Jr., General, U.S. Marine Corps, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

The Chesty Puller Paragon: Leadership Dogma Or Model Doctrine? 2015-11-06 this is a book about two forms of service that may appear contradictory: war fighting and peacemaking. Military service and social entrepreneurship. In 2001, Marine officer in training Rye Barcott cofounded a nongovernmental organization with two Kenyans in the Kibera slum of Nairobi. Because throughout his life and military career, Sergeant Major Al McMichael has proven himself to be a visionary who develops and nurtures ideas to fruition. Anyone who is charged with leading, teaching, mentoring, managing, or caring for people should read the inspiring story of Al McMichael. In Leadership, Dean Mark Pizzo, National Defense University in Washington, D.C., states there is only one Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps at any one time; it is the highest rank an enlisted Marine can achieve. From 1999 to 2003, the USMC's 14th Sergeant Major and the first African American to attain the position was Alford I. McMichael. Now Sergeant Major McMichael shares how the values taught to him around the dinner table and in the hard times of his dirt-poor southern childhood took him to the top of his field and made him one of the most respected and valued leaders of our time. This is not a guide that speaks only to military personnel; this is not a guide that only CEOs will cherish. The magic of McMichael's life lessons is that anyone can relate to and build success from them. Because McMichael himself learned them in the most modest of beginnings, growing up in the 1950s with nine siblings in a single-parent home in Hot Springs, Arkansas, it was the best training he could have received for the marines and with down to earth practicality and an engaging anecdotal style mcmichael demonstrates how the morals work ethic and self discipline he learned from his mother and grandmother gave him the life skills for groundbreaking success practice dinner table values find your compass rely on intelligence over emotion prepare so you can prosper impress yourself first give power to your people lead from the heart these are among the pragmatic and distinctive nuggets of truth mcmichael imparts in leadership and whatever your walk in life they are the foundation for making great things happen are you ready to experience the phenomenal results when you ask the best of yourself and those around you
