notions of the americans in considered cooper s first work of non fiction despite a thin overlay of character and plot written in the form of a travel narrative it addresses the widespread ignorance he encountered in europe about the people and institutions of the united states it is an exuberant chant of praise for american representative democracy encapsulating the utopian vision that compelled cooper s writing career over three decades the introduction draws on materials never before published this edition distinguished by the seal of the center for scholarly editions is the first resetting of the text since the initial american edition in 1828 in 1992 acoustic microscopy was published by oxford university press in the series of monographs on the physics and chemistry of materials reviews appeared in the journal of microscopy 169 1 91 and in contemporary physics 33 4 296 at the time of going to press it seemed that the field of acoustic microscopy had settled down from the wonderful developments in resolution that had been seen in the late seventies and the early eighties and from the no less exciting developments in quantitative elastic measurements that had followed one reviewer wrote the time is ripe for such a book now that the expansion of the subject has perceptively slowed after it was detonated by lemons and quate a howie proc rms 27 4 280 in many ways this remains true the basic design for both imaging and quantitative instruments is well established the upper frequency for routine imaging is the 2 ghz established by the ernst leitz scanning acoustic microscope elsam in 1984 for the most accurate v z measurements the 225 mhz line focus beam lens developed at tohoku univer sity a little before then remains standard the principles of the contrast theory have been confirmed by abundant experience in particular the role of surface acoustic waves such as rayleigh waves dominates the contrast in most high resolution studies of many materials although the need to study agriculture in different parts of the world on its own terms has long been recognized and re affirmed a tendency persists to evaluate agriculture across the globe using concepts lines of evidence and methods derived from eurasian research however researchers working in different regions are becoming increasingly aware of fundamental differences in the nature of and methods employed to study agriculture and plant exploitation practices in the past contributions to this volume rethink agriculture whether in terms of existing regional chronologies in terms of techniques employed or in terms of the concepts that frame our interpretations this volume highlights new archaeological and ethnoarchaeological research on early agriculture in understudied non eurasian regions including island southeast asia and the pacific the americas and africa to present a more balanced view of the origins and development of agricultural practices around the globe high altitude physiology and medicine has again become important the excep tional achievements of mountaineers who have climbed nearly all peaks over 8 000 m without breathing equipment raise the question of maximal adaptation ca pacity of man to low oxygen pressures more importantly the increase in tourism in the andes and the himalayas brings over 10 000 people to sites at altitudes above 4 000 and 5 000 m each year at such heights several kinds of high alti tude diseases are likely to occur and these complications require detailed medical investigations medical authorities need to inform both mountaineers and tourists as to how great a physical burden can be taken in the mountain environment without risk to health physicians need to know what kind of prophylaxis is to be employed at high altitudes to prevent the development of diseases and what therapeutic measures should be used once high altitude diseases have occurred moreover the physical condition of the indigenous population living at higher altitudes such as the andes and the himalayas who are exposed continuously to the stress of high altitude requires our attention we have become familiar with symptoms characteristic of chronic high altitude disease under special conditions this popu lation has a tendency to develop pulmonary hypertension which is associated with pulmonary edema pulmonary congestion and right heart failure palaeolimnology is one of the most rapidly developing fields of limnology the primary objective of this volume is to present new palaeolimnological findings from eastern and central europe although this area has sometimes received less attention than other areas of europe the lakes and mires coupled with the variability in landscape and the local differences in climate provide unique opportunity for studying palaeolimnology the volume starts with a review on late quaternary records from the carpathian region followed by new results on the history of a crater lake lake saint ana glacial lakes in the tatra mountains and lake bled in slovenia in addition the various papers provide new insights on the development of lakes and bogs during the late glacial and holocene using a wide range of palaeolimnological proxies including diatoms pollen macrofossils pigments cladoceran remains chironomids chaoborids stable isotopes and geochemistry the motivation for collecting recent knowledge derives from the recognition of the importance and applicability of palaeolimnological tools to help in defining reference conditions as designated within the water framework directives and estimating influence of global climate change on surface waters
