Empire Films and the Crisis of Colonialism, 1946–1959 2015-05-15

the first transnational history of cinema's role in decolonization using popular cinema from the United States, Britain, and France. Empire Films and the Crisis of Colonialism, 1946–1959 examines postwar Western attitudes toward colonialism and race relations. Historians have written much about the high politics of decolonization but little about what ordinary citizens thought about losing their empires. Popular cinema provided the main source of images of the colonies, and according to Jon Cowans, in this far-reaching book, films depicting the excesses of empire helped Westerners come to terms with decolonization and even promoted the dismantling of colonialism around the globe. Examining more than one hundred British, French, and American films from the post-World War II era, Cowans concentrates on movies that depict interactions between white colonizers and nonwhite colonial subjects, including sexual and romantic relations. Although certain conservative films eagerly supported colonialism, Cowans argues that the more numerous liberal colonialist productions undermined support for key aspects of colonial rule, while a few more provocative films openly favored anticolonial movements and urged internal decolonization for people of color in Britain, France, and the United States. Combining new archival research on the films' production with sharp analysis of their imagery and political messages, the book also assesses their reception through box office figures and newspaper reviews. It examines both high-profile and lesser-known films on overseas colonialism, including The King and I, Bhowani Junction, and Island in the Sun, and tackles treatments of miscegenation and internal colonialism that appeared in Western and American films like Pinky and Giant. The first truly transnational history of cinema's role in decolonization, this powerful book weaves a unified historical narrative out of the experiences of three colonial powers in diverse geographic settings.

In the spring of 1954, after eight years of bitter fighting, the war in Vietnam between the French and the communist-led Viet Minh came to a head. With French forces reeling, the United States planned to intervene militarily to shore up the anti-communist position, turning to its allies for support. First and foremost, Great Britain. The US administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower sought to create what Secretary of State John Foster dulles called a united action coalition in the event winston churchill's conservative government refused to back the plan fearing that us led intervention could trigger a wider war in which the united kingdom would be the first target for soviet nuclear attack the british foreign secretary anthony eden was determined to act as indochina peacemaker even at the cost of damage to the anglo american special relationship in this important study kevin ruane and matthew jones revisit a cold war episode in which british diplomacy played a vital role in settling a crucial question of international war and peace eden's diplomatic triumph at the 1954 geneva conference on indochina is often overshadowed by the 1956 suez crisis which led to his political downfall this book however recalls an earlier eden a skilled and experienced international diplomatist at the height of his powers who may well have prevented a localised cold war crisis escalating into a general third world war lear does lear walk thus speak thus who is it that can tell me who i am centuries of critics and actors have tried to tell but lear's identity and the meaning of his action in the play are still touched with enigma this book seeks shakespeare's intentions in king lear in new ways it explores major interpretations of distinguished actors and directors as well as of critics from england the united states france belgium japan sweden norway germany italy the soviet union czechoslovakia romania hungary bulgaria and poland is the play unsuited for the stage as charles lamb and others have declared how in fact has it been staged and how visualized by critics is lear designed to be a frail and aging old man a powerful image of authority mad or senile to begin with a kindly old father everyman all of these none does the play end with redemption unmitigated despair is it christian pagan mr rosenberg confronts these and other questions from the base of his study and personal experience of the play to deepen the theatrical side of that experience he began as he did in his the masks of othello with an involvement in the staged play he directed and acted in othello and he followed a production of king lear through two months of rehearsal and performance one by product of this intense participation was a discovery of some special qualities in the language of the play to achieve a better understanding of these qualities mr rosenberg put lear's vocabulary through a computer and established a concordance of every word both for the play as a whole and for each character interesting structural elements in shakespeare's language become apparent recognizing the difficulty for a critic of responding afresh to shakespeare's craftsmanship in characterization and in arousing expectation mr rosenberg also arranged to expose the play to spectators who had never seen or read it the response of this naive audience after attending performances was curious and illuminating the author believes that any critical approach must be used that will increase our understanding of shakespeare s work book jacket title summary field provided by blackwell north america inc all rights reserved
