A History of the Irish Army 1991 the irish army draws its traditions from three sources the 1916 rising the war of independence and the civil war this book charts the history of the irish army through its evolution from a guerrilla force to the legally constituted military arm of the irish government up to the present day

Badges and Insignia of the Irish Defence Forces 2019 in the late 1980s the army crisis was dominating headlines in ireland complaints of poor pay low morale and unsatisfactory conditions for those serving in the defence forces were growing louder against the background of a government accused of being indifferent and an army hierarchy accused of being incapable from amidst the turmoil a group of women stepped up to pursue the rights of their men political crisis and a general election followed but a commission established to examine the defence forces ignored the call for soldiers to acquire their own representative body this book reveals for the first time the deep seated philosophies tensions and reservations between ireland's military and its government from the foundation of the state to the present day it explores in detail the events that led to the successful pursuit of the democratic right of association for members of the armed forces in ireland it articulates the concept of the citizen in uniform and the special relationship between members of the armed forces and society this is the story of the breaking of ranks

Breaking Ranks 2016-10-06 the first ever compilation of the irish army's orders of battle from its formation in 1923 to 2004 includes several current tables of organization and equipment 140 content pages

Irish Army Orders of Battle 1923-2004 2005 in september 1939 the second world war broke out the fact that ireland remained neutral in the conflict is well known what is far less well known is that from 1939 onwards ireland prepared to defend itself from invasion combining many previously unseen photographs and documents and with a text based on research in defence forces and official archives this book is an illustrated photographic and documentary history of the military and defensive preparations made by ireland's defence forces during the second world war what became known officially only as the emergency

The Irish Defence Forces 1940-1949 2011 into action is the story of the irish defence forces role as international peacekeepers since 1960 while primarily posted to uphold the transition towards peace in overseas conflicts they have at times inevitably been forced to fight back against often aggressive opposition dan harvey's fascinating and accessible history follows the major military incidents in the peacekeepers sixty year campaign from niemba the siege at jadotville and elizabethville in the congo to at tiri in lebanon and durbol in syria these are to name just a few of the military engagements that involved supreme bravery on behalf of the irish defence forces and at times ended in terrible tragedy dan harvey's detailed account of the military operations they were involved in reveal the defence forces effective responses to crisis and conflict how they stood firm during ethnically motivated rioting in gracancia or intervened in the midst of a clash between chadian government forces and rebel attackers and how the irish nation was halted into mourning in november 1960 by news that nine soldiers of the 33rd irish battalion had been killed by baluba warriors near niemba in the congo these are the deeds and tragedies that have come to define ireland's role in international peacekeeping into action reveals the true story of this role and the immense courage that have underlined its operations from the beginning

EMERGENCY AN ILLUSTRATED HISTORY 2019-11 in the spring of 1980 the irish department of defence sanctioned the establishment of a new unit within the irish defence forces and the irish army ranger wing arw came into being in the decades that followed its soldiers have been deployed on active service at home and abroad generally without the knowledge of the wider public the arw is made up of seasoned men from across the island who are selected through tough competition only the best of the best make it through and are trained in an extraordinary range of specialist skills being one of these elite operators takes more than simply being a skilled soldier it means believing you are the best shadow warriors tells the story behind the creation of the arw from its origins in specialist counter terrorism training in the late 1960s and the preparation of small unconventional units in the 1970s to the formation of the arw itself in 1980 and its subsequent history the first and only authoritative account in the public domain of this specialist unit authors paul o brien and sergeant wayne fitzgerald have been granted access to the closed and clandestine world of ireland's special forces who train hard fight harder and face unconventional types of warfare yet prefer to stay out of the limelight

Into Action 2017-03-13 born in the civil war of 1922-23 the army of the republic of ireland occupied a sensitive place in the national culture for many years in world war ii 1939-1945 it faced the challenge of maintaining ireland's integrity as neutral post war it found a new role in 1960 providing troops for the united nations intervention in the war torn congo and since then has supported un missions in the middle east and elsewhere more recently the border with troubled ulster has obliged the republic to invest in reform and modernisation ireland's freedom to seek examples and equipment worldwide has created an interesting progression of uniforms illustrated in this study of ireland's forces over 80 years

Shadow Warriors 2020-04-03 tracing its history to the foundation of the Irish volunteers in 1913 the Irish defence forces has evolved beyond recognition from the force that emerged in tandem with the new state in 1922 plunged immediately into chaos of a bitter civil war the path to a modern professional defence forces during the 1920s and 1930s was rarely smooth with progression hampered by internal dissent political manoeuvrings and limited financial investment the difficulties of creating and maintaining a force capable of defending the neutrality of a small island nation with a geopolitical and strategic importance that belied its size were brought home during the emergency nonetheless the state's desire to maintain its neutrality as global politics became increasingly polarised in the post war years allowed new opportunities to develop following Ireland's accession to the United Nations in 1955 the defence forces emerged as a core member of the UN's peacekeeping efforts concurrently developing as a vital element of Ireland's international relations the defence forces' duties in aid of the civil power became ever more vital with the outbreak of violence in Northern Ireland in 1969

The Irish Defence Forces, 1922-2022 2022-08-12 since its establishment in 1930 the Irish Military College has had a vital influence on not only the defence forces but on the nation it has formed all of the nation's commissioned officers many of whom have achieved distinction both within and outside of the defence forces the story of this relatively unknown national institution is intriguing as it has attempted to fulfill the roles laid down for it in 1923 in training and instructing officers and officer candidates the task has not been easy as the military college has inevitably been subject to the many changes and fluctuations in the duties roles and fortunes of the wider defence forces in this book Colonel Tom Hodson a former instructor in the military college and a graduate of École de guerre Paris charts its history he recounts how from its early predecessor the Army School of Instruction the military college has repeatedly re-invented itself culminating in the requirement for today's modern institution to embrace and impart instruction based on the needs of the Irish defence forces and the procedures of European and NATO armies

Turnover in the Irish Defence Forces 1990 during a time of high tension terror and fear the Irish defence forces faced the very real threat of the Irish state being plunged into a savagely sectarian civil war the southern state faced a breakdown of law and order severely challenged by manhunts prison breaks shoot outs kidnappings bank robberies subversive training camps bomb making factories illegal weapons shipments and border operations soldiering against subversion is the dramatic and previously untold story of the Irish defence forces' critical role in defending the southern state against paramilitary forces during the worse years of the modern troubles retired lieutenant Colonel Dan Harvey describes the major operations via in-depth interviews with Irish defence veterans revealing how these brave men and women protected the state on home soil from the kidnapping of Shergar and Quinsworth CEO Don Tidey the manhunt and capture of IRA leader Dessie the Border Fox O'Hare the pandemonium as the Irish Army quells a violent prison riot in Mountjoy in 1972 to the Irish Navy's efforts to thwart gun running off the coast of Kerry these first hand accounts reveal the true story of the fight for the nation's democracy

List of Personnel of the Irish Defence Forces Dismissed for Desertion During the Second World War 2000-06-01 this study seeks to identify the factors that underlie the establishment of representative associations in the Irish defence forces the thesis establishes the nature and history of military representation it further finds that the Irish defence forces were almost totally unaware of and had no policy on military representation prior to 1988 by 1991 representative associations were legally established in the Irish defence forces the greater part of the thesis analyzes the interactions of the parties involved in this remarkable evolution that occurred in such a short period of time in addition to the government the military authorities and defence forces personnel the study finds that the printed media and a pressure group composed of military wives were significant players in the process the study concludes that a number of intertwined factors led to the establishment of representative associations in the Irish defence forces many of these factors arose from poor manpower management

AFVs in Irish Service Since 1922 2011 this book chronicles the important role of Ireland's seaborne military forces in the civil war and in the emergency and explains the rebirth of the Irish naval service in the past two decades ever since the Boreas rose sufficiently to form the islands of Ireland and Britain some 8000 years ago both have been dependant on water transport for their being their history has been formed by the sea from the days of the later stone age cultures to the present in this century there have been so many changes to the approach of the Irish to the sea that Aidan McEvoy's book is both timely and necessary much has been written about the manifold problems of Ireland and many books deal with her extraordinary history but this is a book in a different category based on a great deal of research it is the tale of the maritime country which since the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 has consistently turned her back to the sea unless unusual events have caused a temporary change of heart

The Irish Military College 2016-09-07 it may not be widely known but a large number of Irish soldiers deserted their own army during WWII Éire remained neutral and crossed the sea to join the British army once the war was over these men were officially dismissed the service and their names published in this confidential document the formal title of the document is list of personnel of the defence forces dismissed for desertion in time of national emergency pursuant to the terms of emergency powers no 362 order 1945 s r o 1945 no 198 or section 13 of the defence forces temporary provisions act 1946 no 7 1946 in it are listed in alphabetical order some 5 000 or more names with army no last recorded address date of birth declared occupation prior to enlistment in defence forces and date of dismissal from defence forces in the latter case the date is almost invariably 8 August 1945 this document was circulated to all civil service departments and state run services e g post office health service state owned bus rail air and shipping companies etc this was obviously intended to bar them from any form of government employment it is a fascinating document and one which I have never been aware of before it would be interesting with the naval and military press cd of soldiers died in WWII to see how many of them were killed or died in the war the number of desertions is surprisingly large for a small army but it must be an indication of the strength of feeling at the time

Soldiering Against Subversion 2018-08-07 Éire seceded from the United Kingdom in 1922 and simultaneously established its own national army known as the Free State Army later as the Irish Defence Forces regardless of this historic national step the centuries long tradition of Irishmen joining the British military did not cease rather the custom continued and during the Second World War despite Éire's official neutral stance tens of thousands of Irishmen joined the British military within this number there is a unique sub group of soldiers who took a personally greater risk by enlisting those that deserted from the Irish national army

The Advent of Representative Associations in the Irish Defence Forces 1992 during the course of operations a company of irish troops was deployed to protect the inhabitants of the village of jadotville not long after deployment the troops found themselves heavily outnumbered and engaged in a pitched battle with native congolese soldiers led by white mercenary officers in addition to the overwhelming odds the irish also had to contend with being strafed by a jet and had no airpower or anti aircraft defences to defend themselves appeals for re supply from un forces were to no avail there were a number of attempts by irish troops in the vicinity to mount a relief operation for their surrounded comrades however a mixture of superior fire physical obstacles and political machinations within the un led to abject failure but after numerous rescue attempts failed and the irish had fought to their last rounds of ammunition and were already using bayonets in hand to hand fighting comdt quinlan decided against the needless bloodshed of his men and surrendered though many of the men fought bravely some going on to be decorated for valour at later stages they were made to feel inferior within the army to have served at jadotville was something to have been ashamed of

A Military History of Ireland 1997-10-09 this book is the first to draw together the various strands of irish national security policy and practice in a single chronological study from independence in 1922 right up to the present day dr o halpin analyses the rapid emergence of a complex external security policy combining an absolute commitment to military neutrality and independent defence with close co operation with britain over issues of joint concern such as security and immigration he traces the development of the army and police force in the new irish state and examines the state s reaction to the enduring republican threat casting fresh light on how far the state was willing to put key constitutional protections into abeyance in its conflict with the republican movement the book also examines the clandestine intelligence activities of belligerent powers during the second world war documenting the growth of the state s close wartime security understandings with the allied powers and the evolution of cold war links with mi5 and the cia it investigates the evolution of post war defence policy and the activities of the defence forces in relation to the northern ireland crisis as well as in their primary tasks of defending the state from external aggression and of contributing to un peace keeping operations dr o halpin highlights continuities as well as innovations in state security policy as the obligations and opportunities of european union membership grate more and more against the absolutist rhetoric of neutrality this book is essential reading for anyone wishing to understand the development of the irish state in the twentieth century

Franco-Irish Military Connections, 1590-1945 2009 i woke to the sight of a hospital ceiling for that first blissful second i forgot that i was paralysed on 31 december 2014 billy hedderman suffered a catastrophic injury to his spinal cord while body boarding on the sunshine coast paralysing him almost completely from the neck down when asked if he would walk again his doctor simply said i dunno maybe yet incredibly within just seven months of his injury he was able to beat the odds and run a 10km race in under an hour this is the powerful story of billy s recovery and a fascinating account of his service as an officer in the elite special forces unit the army ranger wing of the irish army it was from this service that he took the never say die attitude that helped him prevail against all medical expectations to recover and serve as an infantry officer in the australian army it is a story of almost unbelievable personal resilience and mental toughness which will amaze and inspire

Irish Officers in the British Forces, 1922-45 2014-03-25 the republic of ireland has won its status as a leading contributor to international peacekeeping operations which has been its key foreign policy since the 1960s but why is ireland so keen to be involved this new book asks and answers this and other key questions about Ireland's close involvement with the EU it cannot simply be for charitable reasons so is it because it is a neutral state or because it is a middle power overall is Ireland's peacekeeping policy based on realism and liberalism the characteristics of peacekeeping operations have changed significantly especially since the end of the cold war can Ireland survive as a traditional peacekeeping contributor or does it have to change its peacekeeping policy radically and will it be able to maintain its distance from NATO and the EU in terms of peacekeeping operations this title attempts to answer all of these questions drawing on a wide range of resources from literature Irish and UN documents to newspapers and interviews

A Woman in Defence 2023-01-26 Ireland's second world war frontline troops were the men of the coast watching service from 1939-45 they maintained a continuous watch along the Irish shoreline reporting all incidents in the seas and skies to military intelligence G2 they had a vital influence on the development of Ireland's pro allied neutrality and on the defence of Ireland during the emergency as through their reports G2 assessed the direction of the battle of the Atlantic off Ireland and reported belligerent threats to the state upwards to the chief of staff of the defence forces to the cabinet and Taoiseach and minister for external affairs Eamon de Valera using unique Irish military sources and newly available British and American material the history of the coastwatchers and G2 combines to tell the history of the second world war as it happened locally along the coast of Ireland and at national and international levels in Dublin London Berlin and Washington of particular importance the study reveals in the greatest detail yet available the secret relationship between Irish military and diplomats and British Admiralty intelligence showing how coast watching service reports were passed on to the RAF and Royal Navy Britain in the hunt for German U-boats and aircraft in the Atlantic
