an incredible season for algebraic geometry flourished in Italy between 1860 when Luigi Cremona was assigned the chair of Geometria Superiore in Bologna and 1959 when Francesco Severi published the last volume of the treatise on algebraic systems over a surface and an algebraic variety. This century-long season has had a prominent influence on the evolution of complex algebraic geometry both at the national and international levels and still inspires modern research in the area. Algebraic geometry in Italy between tradition and future is a collection of contributions aiming at presenting some of these powerful ideas and their connection to contemporary and, if possible, future developments such as Cremonian transformations, birational classification of high-dimensional varieties starting from Gino Fano. The life and works of Guido Castelnuovo, Francesco Severi's mathematical library, etc. The presentation is enriched by the viewpoint of various researchers of the history of mathematics who describe the cultural milieu and tell about the bios of some of the most famous mathematicians of those times.

One of the book's key questions is how have women's policy agencies been able to develop, maintain, or enhance their roles in the transformed political context and how have women's movements adapted to change in twelve states.

this book is the product of the 2nd world conference on environmental history held in guimarães portugal in 2014 it gathers works by authors from the five continents addressing concerns raised by past events so as to provide information to help manage the present and the future it reveals how our cultural background and examples of past territorial intervention can help to combat political and cultural limitations through the common language of environmental benefits without disguising harmful past human interventions considering that political ideologies such as socialism and capitalism as well as religion fail to offer global paradigms for common ground an environmentally positive discourse instead of an ecological determinism might serve as an umbrella common language to overcome blocking factors real or invented and avoid repeating ecological loss therefore agency environmental speech and historical research are urgently needed in order to sustain environmental paradigms and overcome political cultural and economic interests in the public arena this book intertwines reflections on our bonds with landscapes processes of natural and scientific transfer across the globe the changing of ecosystems the way in which scientific knowledge has historically both accelerated destruction and allowed a better distribution of vital resources or as it in today's world can offer alternatives that avoid harming those same vital natural resources water soil and air in addition it shows the relevance of cultural factors both in the taming of nature in favor of human comfort and in the role of the environment matters in the forging of cultural identities which cannot be detached from technical intervention in the world in short the book firstly studies the past approaching it as a data set of how the environment has shaped culture secondly seeks to understand the present and thirdly assesses future perspectives what to keep what to change and what to dream anew considering that conventional solutions have not sufficed to protect life on our planet in the backdrop of the new european bauhaus our time presents the european designer with three pivotal keywords beautiful sustainable and together the central question that this issue of ardeth seeks to address is how to employ these three keywords in the best possible way in essence it grapples with the question of how to use but not abuse the checkpoints they provide us with to truly grasp the intricacies of their intended applications the aim is to prevent hastening the transition from words to designs and ultimately from designs to the artefacts that make up the space of our day to day human existence research on language universals and research on linguistic typology are not antagonistic but rather complementary approaches to the same fundamental problem the relationship between the amazing diversity of languages and the profound unity of language only if the true extent of typological divergence is recognized can universal laws be formulated in recent years it has become more and more evident that a broad range of languages of radically different types must be carefully analyzed before general theories are possible typological comparison of this kind is now at the centre of linguistic research the series empirical approaches to language typology presents a platform for contributions of all kinds to this rapidly developing field the distinctive feature of the series is its markedly empirical orientation all conclusions to be reached are the result of a deepened study of empirical data general problems are focused on from the perspective of individual languages language families language groups or language samples special emphasis is given to the analysis of phenomena from little known languages which shed new light on long standing problems in general linguistics the series is open to contributions from different theoretical persuasions it thus reflects the methodological pluralism that characterizes the present situation care is taken that all volumes be accessible to every linguist and moreover to every reader specializing in some domain related to human language a deeper understanding of human language in general based on a detailed analysis of typological diversity among individual languages is fundamental for many sciences not only for linguists therefore this series has proven to be indispensable in every research library be it public or private which has a specialization in language and the language sciences to discuss your book idea or submit a proposal please contact birgit sievert
