excerpt from the new monthly magazine and literary journal 1833 vol 3 we shall treat very briefly the delicate point of anonymous editorship we are convinced that this too has advantages which its opposite can not counterbalance if a name is to give importance to editorial dignity it must of course be one of considerable note the individual so ostensibly sustaining an office that if well discharged must employ the greatest portion of his time must nevertheless feel that he has to take care of his reputation as an author advance his fortunes and attend to the public and private avocations which his celebrity has opened to him these exhaust his energies he thinks occasionally of his duties as an editor procrastinates to morrow will give more leisure an unexpected and indispensable engagement consumes the morrow the month advances the day of publication presses upon him with alarming celerity he is totally unprepared he sits down to write but he must produce something worthy of his fame something that will justify the high expectations of the public in this he either fails or succeeds according as he is in or out of the vein in fact a great name does little in advancing the real and substantial interests of a periodical the anonymous might in this view therefore be preferred about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
