A Bourdieusian Analysis of 64 Students Pursuing a Second Chance in a Community College in Hong Kong 1997-10-01

a continuous expansion of higher education has made it possible not only for more students to get straight into university but also for more students to obtain a university place at their second attempt immediately after their first attempt fails however the educational experiences of students who seek such a second chance have been under examined in filling this empirical gap this book offers an application of bourdieu s analysis of class reproduction through education together with his three concepts of habitus cultural capital and field and the concept of emotional capital derived from an extension of his framework to make sense of educational experiences of 64 community college students who seek such a second chance in hong kong the option of community college as a second chance became available in hong kong in the year 2000 the book explores how specific characteristics of community college in hong kong impact on the ways in which respondents of the middle and working classes see and feel about their selves throughout the course of pursuing this second chance it also revisits bourdieu s framework and suggests the possibility of theorising an observed class contrast in orientation to making sense of academic challenges posed in educational contexts as a form of classed habitus of middle class situational interpretation as opposed to working class direct understanding autonomous cars drones and electronic surveillance systems are examples of technologies that raise serious ethical issues in this analytic investigation martin peterson articulates and defends five moral principles for addressing ethical issues related to new and existing technologies the cost benefit principle the precautionary principle the sustainability principle the autonomy principle and the fairness principle it is primarily the method developed by peterson for articulating and analyzing the five principles that is novel he argues that geometric concepts such as points lines and planes can be put to work for clarifying the structure and scope of these and other moral principles this geometric account is based on the aristotelian dictum that like cases should be treated alike meaning that the degree of similarity between different cases can be represented as a distance in moral space the more similar a pair of cases are from a moral point of view the closer is their location in moral space a case that lies closer in moral space to a paradigm case for some principle p than to any paradigm for any other principle should be analyzed by applying principle p the book also presents empirical results from a series of experimental studies in which experts philosophers and laypeople engineering students have been asked to apply the geometric method to fifteen real world cases the empirical findings indicate that experts and laypeople do in fact apply geometrically construed moral principles
