rethinking islamic studies upends scholarly roadblocks in post orientalist discourse within contemporary islamic studies and carves fresh inroads toward a robust new understanding of the discipline one that includes religious studies and other politically infused fields of inquiry editors carl w ernst and richard c martin along with a distinguished group of scholars map the trajectory of the study of islam and offer innovative approaches to the theoretical and methodological frameworks that have traditionally dominated the field in the volume s first section the contributors reexamine the underlying notions of modernity in the east and west and allow for the possibility of multiple and incongruent modernities this opens a discussion of fundamentalism as a manifestation of the tensions of modernity in muslim cultures the second section addresses the volatile character of islamic religious identity as expressed in religious and political movements at national and local levels in the third section contributors focus on muslim communities in asia and examine the formation of religious models and concepts as they appear in this region this study concludes with an afterword by accomplished islamic studies scholar bruce b lawrence reflecting on the evolution of this post orientalist approach to islam and placing the volume within existing and emerging scholarship rethinking islamic studies offers original perspectives for the discipline each utilizing the tools of modern academic inquiry to help illuminate contemporary incarnations of islam for a growing audience of those invested in a sharper understanding of the muslim world this book deals with islamic studies and with the question how the scholarly study of religion can contribute to the study of islam the author advocates studying islamic phenomena as signs and symbols interpreted and applied in diverse ways in existing traditions he stresses the role of muslims as actors in the ongoing debate about the articulation of islamic ways of life and construction of islam as a religion a careful study of this debate should steer clear of political religious and ideological interests research in this area by muslims and non muslim scholars alike should address the question of what muslims have made of their islam in specific circumstances current political contexts have created an unhealthy climate for pursuing an open approach to islam based on reading observing listening and reflecting yet precisely nowadays we need to look anew at ways of muslim thinking and acting that refer to islam and to avoid certain schemes of interpreting muslim realities that are no longer adequate for present day muslim life situations muslim recourse to islam can be studied as human constructions of value and meaning and relations between muslims and others can be seen in terms of human interaction without blame always falling on islam as such

from the cleric led iranian revolution to the rise of the taliban in afghanistan many people have been surprised by what they see as the modern reemergence of an antimodern phenomenon this book helps account for the increasingly visible public role of traditionally educated muslim religious scholars the ulama across contemporary muslim societies muhammad qasim zaman describes the transformations the centuries old culture and tradition of the ulama have undergone in the modern era transformations that underlie the new religious and political activism of these scholars in doing so provides a new foundation for the comparative study of islam politics and religious change in the contemporary world while focusing primarily on pakistan zaman takes a broad approach that considers the taliban and the ulama of iran egypt saudi arabia india and the southern philippines he shows how their religious and political discourses have evolved in often unexpected but mutually reinforcing ways to redefine and enlarge the roles the ulama play in society their discourses are informed by a longstanding religious tradition of which they see themselves as the custodians but these discourses are equally shaped by and contribute in significant ways to contemporary debates in the muslim public sphere this book offers the first sustained comparative perspective on the ulama and their increasingly crucial religious and political activism it shows how issues of religious authority are debated in contemporary islam how islamic law and tradition are continuously negotiated in a rapidly changing world and how the ulama both react to and shape larger islamic social trends introducing previously unexamined facets of religious and political thought in modern islam it clarifies the complex processes of religious change unfolding in the contemporary muslim world and goes a long way toward explaining their vast social and political ramifications
