Character Building for Families 2004-10 excerpt from the character building readers not all of the pieces are charged with a moral as in the other numbers of this series excepting the last

variety is secured by a sprinkling of themes that have no relation to ethics the special aims of the first year course receive some reenforcement in this and there is also a foreshadowing of what will be more definitely attempted in succeeding numbers the method of teaching is no longer set forth in a teachers edition children who have had the powerful course in word study given in the first year s work will find this book easy reading it is graded to meet the needs of the average class after any good first year course teachers should master the principles of the natural method in reading as set forth in the teachers edition for first year work and apply them in this and subsequent grades the first of these is that words are to be regarded as inter esting objects of study not as items in a spelling list the next is that words are best studied in their relations not as isolated objects there are two sets of relations that shed light on words and their content one is the relations they sustain to other words in context by which their meanings are modified and by which we are led to choose subconsciously between two pronunciations of the word row or between two spellings of the word rein rain etc the study of words in context must be pursued with great caution not to suggest homonyms unnecessarily and to lead the thought away from their accidental association by much practice upon one alone until the other is forgotten the question which shall i use in this connection would never arise if alert teaching could perfectly guard against it but the occasion would always suggest the correct form alone and never the two about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
