of the ola evergreen award finalist for the writers trust shaugnessy cohen prize finalist for the rakuten kobo emerging writer prize updated with new foreword postscript and educator s guide in this bracing revelatory work of award winning journalism celebrated writer and activist desmond cole punctures the naive assumptions of canadians who believe we live in a post racial nation chronicling just one year in the struggle against racism in this country the skin we re in reveals in stark detail the injustices faced by black canadians on a daily basis the devastating effects of racist policing the hopelessness produced by an education system that fails black children the heartbreak of those separated from their families by discriminatory immigration laws and more cole draws on his own experiences as a black man in canada and locates the deep cultural historical and political roots of each event what emerges is a personal painful and comprehensive picture of entrenched systemic inequality updated with a new foreword postscript and an extensive educator s guide the skin we re in is essential reading for all canadians and a vital tool in the fight against racism with a complete update of the anatomy and physiology of the skin advanced skin analysis shares the relevant discoveries about the skin over the past decade and presents them in an easy to understand informative manner that links structure and function to various skin conditions back cover this key volume of the target organ toxicology series provides a fresh and modern approach to the subject of skin toxicology from the perspective of how the skin forms a barrier that protects the body from the external environment and how chemicals and drugs interact with the barrier properties of the skin any defects or perturbations to this barrier adopting an interdisciplinary approach this volume explores representations of skin in literature art art history visual media and medicine and its history the essays collected here probe the symbolic potential of skin as a shifting sign in various historical and cultural contexts and also examine the material and organic properties of the body s largest organ they deal with skin as a sensual organ as an interface or contact zone as the visual marker of identity and as a lieu de memoire in different periods and media in its material characteristics skin is regarded as a medium a canvas a surface and an object of both artistic and medical investigations the contributions investigate representations of skin in sculpture painting film and fictional as well as non fictional texts from the 16th century to the present the topics addressed here include the problematic representation of racial identity via skin colour in various media the sensual qualities of the skin such as smell or taste the form and function of tattoos as markers of personal as well as collective identity and scars as signifiers of personal pain and collective suffering an the concept of expressing acidity as the negative logarithm of the hydrogen ion concentration was defined and termed ph in the beginning of the 20th century the general usefulness of the ph concept for life science was recognized and later gained importance to analytical research reports on results of ph measurements from living skin established the term acid mantle the skin s own protective shield that maintains a naturally acid pH it is invisible to the eye but crucial to the overall wellbeing of skin chronic alkalization can throw this acid mantle out of balance leading to inflammation dermatitis and atopic skin diseases it is therefore no surprise that skin pH shifts have been observed in various skin pathologies it is also obvious that the pH in topically applied preparations may play an important role optimal pH and buffer capacity within topical preparations not only support stability of active ingredients and auxiliary materials but may also increase absorption of the non ionized species of an acidic or a basic active ingredient they may even open up opportunities to modify and correct skin pH and hence accelerate barrier recovery and maintain or enhance barrier integrity further efforts are needed to standardize and improve pH measurements in biological media or pharmaceutical cosmetic vehicles to increase and ensure quality comparability and relevance of research data in this volume we present a unique collection of papers that address past present and future issues of the pH of healthy and diseased skin it is hoped that this collection will foster future efforts in clinical and experimental skin research
