What Makes That Black? 2016 pulitzer prize winning biographer edits a collection of alain locke s influential essays on the importance of the black artist and the black imagination a penguin classic for months the philosopher alain locke wrestled with the idea of the negro as america s most vexing problem he asked how shall negroes think of themselves as he considered the new crop of poets novelists and short story writers who in 1924 wrote about their experiences as black people in america he did not want to frame harlem and black writing as yet another protest against racism nor did he want to focus on the sociological perspective on the negro problem and harlem as a site of crime poverty and dysfunction he wanted to find new language and a new way for black people to think of themselves the essays and articles collected in this volume by locke s pulitzer prize winning biographer are the result of that new attitude and the struggle to instill the new negro aesthetics as stewart calls it here into the mind of the twentieth century to be a new negro poet novelist actor musician dancer or filmmaker was to commit oneself to an arc of self discovery of what and who the negro was would be without fear that one would disappoint the white or black bystander in committing to that path locke asserted one would uncover a being in the world that was rich and bountiful in its creative possibilities if black people could turn off the noise of racism and see themselves for who they really are a world of creative people who have transformed powerfully and perpetually the culture of wherever history or social forces landed them

The New Negro Aesthetic 2022-01-18 christopher freeburg s black aesthetics and the interior life offers a crucial new reading of a neglected aspect of african american literature and art across the long twentieth century rejecting the idea that the most dehumanizing of black experiences such as lynching or other racial violence have completely robbed victims of their personhood freeburg rethinks what it means to be a person in the works of black artists this book advances the idea that individual persons always retain the ability to withhold express or change their ideas and this concept has profound implications for long held assumptions about the relationship between black interior life and black collective political interests examining an array of seminal black texts from ida b wells s antilynching pamphlets to works by richard wright nina simone and toni morrison freeburg demonstrates that the personhood represented by these writers unsettles rather than automatically strengthens black subjects relationships to political movements such as racial uplift civil rights and black nationalism he shows how black artists illuminate the challenges of racial collectivity while stressing the vital stakes of individual personhood in his challenge to current african americanist criticism freeburg makes a striking contribution to our understanding of african american literature and culture

Black Aesthetics and the Interior Life 2017-09-12 a 2008 cover of the new yorker featured a much discussed black power parody of michelle and barack obama the image put a spotlight on how easy it is to flatten the black power movement as we imagine new types of blackness margo natalie crawford argues that we have misread the black arts movement s call for blackness we have failed to see the movement s anticipation of the new black and post black black post blackness compares the black avant garde of the 1960s and 1970s black arts movement with the most innovative spins of twenty first century black aesthetics crawford zooms in on the 1970s second wave of the black arts movement and shows the connections between this final wave of the black arts movement and the early years of twenty first century black aesthetics she uncovers the circle of black post blackness that pivots on the power of anticipation abstraction mixed media the global south satire public interiority and the fantastic interest is a personal racial memoir by the author in which he depicts defining moments in his life when he confronts the question of race head on in another chapter sure to be controversial he explains why he no longer uses the word nigga who s afraid of post blackness is a complex conversation on modern america that aims to change how we perceive race in ways that are as nuanced and spirited as the nation itself

The Black Aesthetic 1971 exploring the interface between the cultural politics of the black power and the black arts movements and the production of postwar african american popular culture amy ongiri shows how the reliance of black politics on an oppositional image of african americans was the formative moment in the construction of authentic blackness as a cultural identity while other books have adopted either a literary approach to the language poetry and arts of these movements or a historical analysis of them ongiri s captures the cultural and political interconnections of the postwar period by using an interdisciplinary methodology drawn from cinema studies and music theory she traces the emergence of this black aesthetic from its origin in the black power movement s emphasis on the creation of visual icons and the black arts movement s celebration of urban vernacular culture

Who's Afraid of Post-Blackness? 2011-09-13 during the era of the slave trade more than 12 million africans were brought as slaves to the americas their memories ideas beliefs and practices would forever reshape its history and cultures april c e langley s the black aesthetic unbound exposes the dilemma of the literal metaphorical and rhetorical question what is african in african american literature confronting the undeniable imprints of west african culture and consciousness in early black writing such as olaudah equiano s the interesting narrative or phillis wheatley s poetry the author conceives eighteenth century black experience to be literally and figuratively encompassing and inextricably linked to africa europe and america consequently this book has three aims to locate the eighteenth century as the genesis of the cultural and historical movements which mark twentieth century black aestheticism known as the black aesthetic to analyze problematic associations of african identity as manifested in an essentialized afro america and to study the relationship between specific west african modes of thought and expression and the emergence of a black aesthetic in eighteenth century north america by exploring how senegalese igbo and other west african traditions provide striking new lenses for reading poetry and prose by six significant writers langley offers a fresh perspective on this important era in our literary history ultimately the author confronts the difficult dilemma of how to use diasporic syncretic and vernacular theories of black culture to think through the massive cultural transformations wrought by the middle passage

Spectacular Blackness 2010 during the 1960s and 1970s a cadre of poets playwrights visual artists musicians and other visionaries came together to create a renaissance in african american literature and art this charged chapter in the history of african american culture which came to be known as the black arts movement has remained largely neglected by subsequent generations of critics new thoughts on the black arts movement includes essays that reexamine well known figures such as amiri baraka larry neal gwendolyn brooks sonia sanchez betye saar jeff donaldson and haki madhubuti in addition the anthology expands the scope of the movement by offering essays that explore the racial and sexual politics of the era links with other period cultural movements the arts in prison the role of black colleges and universities gender politics and the rise of feminism color fetishism photography music and more an invigorating look at a movement that has long begged for reexamination this collection lucidly interprets the complex debates that surround this tumultuous era and demonstrates that the celebration of this movement need not be separated from its critique

Next Generation 1990 what did the negro problem as it was called at the turn of the twentieth century look like autumn womack s study examines efforts to visualize black social life through new technologies and disciplines from photography and film to statistics in the decades between 1880 and 1930 womack describes nothing less than a racial data revolution one in which social scientists reformers and theorists rendered black life an inanimate object of inquiry at the very same time black cultural producers staged their own kind of revolution undisciplining racial data in ways that challenged normative visual regimes and capturing the dynamism of black social life womack focuses on figures like w e b dubois kelly miller sutton griggs and zora neale hurston as well as lesser known editors social reformers and performers she shows how they harnessed media as diverse as the social survey the novel the stage and early motion pictures to reform visual practices and recalibrate the relationship between data and black life

A Black Aesthetic 2019 beginning with a deceptively simple question what do we mean when we designate behaviors values or forms of expression as black evie shockley s renegade poetics teases out the more complex and nuanced possibilities the concept has long encompassed she redefines black aesthetics descriptively resituating innovative poetry that has been marginalized because it was not recognizably black and avant garde poetry dismissed because it was black cover

Black Aesthetic, Season One 2017 this unorthodox account of 1960s black thought rigorously details the field s debts to german critical theory and explores a forgotten tradition of black singularity phenomenal blackness examines the changing interdisciplinary investments of key mid century black writers and thinkers including the growing interest in german philosophy and critical theory mark christian thompson analyzes this shift in intellectual focus across the post war decades placing black power thought in a philosophical context prior to the 1960s sociologically oriented thinkers such as w e b du bois had understood blackness as a singular set of socio historical characteristics in contrast writers such as amiri baraka james baldwin angela y davis eldridge cleaver and malcolm x were drawn to notions of an african essence an ontology of black being with these perspectives literary language came to be seen as the primary social expression of blackness for this new way of thinking the works of philosophers such as adorno habermas and marcuse were a vital resource allowing for continued cultural materialist analysis while accommodating the hermeneutical aspects of black religious thought thompson argues that these efforts to reimagine black singularity led to a phenomenological understanding of blackness a black aesthetic dimension wherein aspirational models for black liberation might emerge
