five frenchmen go off to war two of them leaving behind a certain young woman who longs for their return but the main character in 1914 is the great war itself jean echenoz the multi award winning french literary magician whose work has been compared to joseph conrad and lawrence Sterne has brought that deathtrap back to life leading us gently from a balmy summer day deep into the insatiable and still unthinkable carnage of trench warfare with the delicacy of a miniaturist and with irony both witty and clear eyed the author offers us an intimate epic with the atmosphere of a classic movie in the panorama of a clear blue sky a biplane spirals suddenly into the ground a tardy piece of shrapnel shears the top off a man's head as if it were a soft boiled egg we dawdle dreamily in a spring scented clearing with a lonely shell shocked soldier strolling innocently to a firing squad ready to shoot him for desertion but ultimately the grace notes of humanity in 1914 rise above the terrors of war in this beautifully crafted tale that Echenoz tells with discretion precision and love an old man walks along deserted railway tracks long since unused and overgrown beside him a young feral boy helps him along it has been 60 years since the great red death wiped out mankind and the handful of survivors from all walks of life have established their own civilization and their own hierarchy in a savage world art science and all learning has been lost and the young descendants of the healthy know nothing of the world that was nothing but myths and make believe the old man is the only one who can convey the wonders of that bygone age and the horrors of the plague that brought about its end what future lies in store for the remnants of mankind can only be surmised their ignorance barbarity and ruthlessness the only hopes they have this cataclysmic tale remains a terrifying prophecy of the perils of globalization which are all too pertinent today
