how do people in the african diaspora practice islam while the term black muslim may conjure images of malcolm x and muhammad ali millions of african descended muslims around the globe have no connection to the american based nation of islam the call of bilal is a penetrating account of the rich diversity of islamic religious practice among africana muslims worldwide covering north africa and the middle east india and pakistan europe and the americas edward e curtis iv reveals a fascinating range of religious activities from the observance of the five pillars of islam and the creation of transnational sufi networks to the veneration of african saints and political struggles for racial justice weaving together ethnographic fieldwork and historical perspectives curtis shows how africana muslims interpret not only their religious identities but also their attachments to the african diaspora for some the dispersal of african people across time and space has been understood as a mere physical scattering or perhaps an economic opportunity for others it has been a metaphysical and spiritual exile of the soul from its sacred land and eternal home elijah muhammad s nation of islam came to america s attention in the 1960s and 1970s as a radical separatist african american social and political group but the movement was also a religious one edward e curtis iv offers the first comprehensive examination of the rituals ethics theologies and religious narratives of the nation of islam showing how the movement combined elements of afro eurasian islamic traditions with african american traditions to create a new form of islamic faith considering everything from bean pies to religious cartoons clothing styles to prayer rituals curtis explains how the practice of islam in the movement included the disciplining and purifying of the black body the reorientation of african american historical consciousness toward the muslim world an engagement with both mainstream islamic texts and the prophecies of elijah muhammad and the development of a holistic approach to political religious and social liberation curtis s analysis pushes beyond essentialist ideas about what it means to be muslim and offers a view of the importance of local processes in identity formation and the appropriation of islamic traditions i loves you you are an angel words and expressions that dura often hears that fact is what makes dura so special but love and sincere love that really does not know age but the current of life makes those words and expressions unstoppable even more so in storms in covid19 epidemics asfar became silent dumb hiding the secret of the past turmoil without words or expression dura stepped forward in the darkness brings a sense of wounded sorrow dura s absence gives awareness to asfar who is supposed to take care of it the goodness of dura who had made her life happy before feelings of loss and remorse cannot change something that is lost although the day turns twilight yet the color of love never changed at dusk as time passed love will never grow old even if you have to grow old tariq ramadan is very much a public figure named one of time magazine s most important innovators of the twenty first century he is among the leading islamic thinkers in the west with a large following around the world but he has also been a lightning rod for controversy indeed in 2004 ramadan was prevented from entering the u s by the bush administration and despite two appeals supported by organizations like the american academy of religion and the aclu he was barred from the country until spring of 2010 when secretary of state hillary clinton finally lifted the ban in what i believe ramadan attempts to set the record straight laying out the basic ideas he stands for in clear and accessible prose he describes the book as a work of clarification directed at ordinary citizens politicians journalists and others who are curious or skeptical about his positions aware that that he is dealing with emotional issues ramadan tries to get past the barriers of prejudice and misunderstanding to speak directly from the heart to his muslim and non muslim readers alike in particular he calls on western muslims to escape the mental social cultural and religious ghettos they have created for themselves and become full partners in the democratic societies in which they live at the same time he calls for the rest of us to recognize our muslim neighbors as citizens with rights and responsibilities the same as ours his vision is of a future in which a shared and confident pluralism becomes a reality at last
