often depicted as one of the world s most strictly isolationist and relentlessly authoritarian regimes north korea has remained terra incognita to foreign researchers as a site for anthropological fieldwork given the difficulty of gaining access to the country and its people is it possible to examine the cultural logic and social dynamics of the democratic people s republic of korea in this innovative book sonia ryang casts new light onto the study of north korean culture and society by reading literary texts as sources of ethnographic data analyzing and interpreting the rituals and language embodied in a range of literary works published in the 1970s and 1980s ryang focuses critical attention on three central themes love war and self that reflect the nearly complete overlap of the personal social and political realms in north korean society the ideology embedded in these propagandistic works laid the cultural foundation for the nation as a perpetual ritual state where social structures and personal relations are suspended in tribute to kim il sung the political and spiritual leader who died in 1994 but lives eternally in the hearts of his people and still weaves the social fabric of present day north korea urban redevelopment plays a major part in the growth strategy of the modern city and the goal of this book is to examine the various aspects of redevelopment its principles and practices in the north american context urban redevelopment a north american reader seeks to shed light on the practice by looking at both its failures and successes ideas that seemed to work in specific circumstances but not in others the book aims to provide guidance to academics practitioners and professionals on how when where and why specific approaches worked and when they didn t while one has to deal with each case specifically it is the interactions that are key the contributors offer insight into how urban design affects behavior how finance drives architectural choices how social equity interacts with economic development how demographical diversity drives cities growth how politics determine land use decisions how management deals with market choices and how there are multiple influences and impacts of every decision the book moves from the history of urban redevelopment the city beautiful movement grand concourses and plazas through urban renewal superblocks and downtown pedestrian malls to today s place making transit oriented design street quieting new urbanism publicly accessible softer waterfront design funky small urban spaces and public private megaprojects this history also moves from grand masters such as baron haussmann and robert moses through community participation to stakeholder involvement to creative local leadership the increased importance of sustainability high energy performance resilience and both pre and post catastrophe planning are also discussed in detail cities are acts of man not nature every street and building represents decisions made by people many of today s best recognized urban theorists look for great forces economic trends technological shifts political movements and try to analyze how they impact cities one does not have to be a subscriber to the great man theory of history to see that in urban redevelopment successful project champions use or sometimes overcome overall trends using the tools and resources available to rebuild their community this book is about how these projects are brought together each somewhat differently by the people who make them happen using charlotte north carolina as a case study of the dynamics of racial change in the moderate south davison douglas analyzes the desegregation of the city s public schools from the supreme court s 1954 brown v board of education decision through the early 1970s when the city embarked upon the most ambitious school busing plan in the nation in charting the path of racial change douglas considers the relative efficacy of the black community s use of public demonstrations and litigation to force desegregation he also evaluates the role of the city s white business community which was concerned with preserving charlotte s image as a racially moderate city in facilitating racial gains charlotte s white leadership anxious to avoid economically damaging racial conflict engaged in early but decidedly token integration in the late 1950s and early 1960s in response to the black community s public protest and litigation efforts the insistence in the late 1960s on widespread busing however posed integration demands of an entirely different magnitude as douglas shows the city s white leaders initially resisted the call for busing but eventually relented because they recognized the importance of a stable school system to the city s continued prosperity

Reading Is My Window 2010-02-15

originally published in 1984 reading the romance challenges popular and often demeaning myths about why romantic fiction one of publishing s most lucrative categories captivates millions of women readers among those who have disparaged romance reading are feminists literary critics and theorists of mass culture they claim that romances enforce the woman reader s dependence on men and acceptance of the repressive ideology purveyed by popular culture radway questions such claims arguing that critical attention must shift from the text itself taken in isolation to the complex social event of reading she examines that event from the complicated business of publishing and distribution to the individual reader s engagement with the text radway s provocative approach combines reader response criticism with anthropology and feminist psychology asking readers themselves to explore their reading motives habits and rewards she conducted interviews in a midwestern town with forty two romance readers whom she met through dorothy evans a chain bookstore employee who has earned a reputation as an expert on romantic fiction evans defends her customers choice of entertainment reading romances she tells radway is no more harmful than watching sports on television we read books so we won't cry is the poignant explanation one woman offers for her reading habit indeed radway found that while the women she studied devote themselves to nurturing their families these wives and mothers receive insufficient devotion or nurturance in return in romances the women find not only escape from the demanding and often tiresome routines of their lives but also a hero who supplies the tenderness and admiring attention that they have learned not to expect the heroines admired by radway's group defy the expected stereotypes they are strong independent and intelligent that such characters often find themselves to be victims of male aggression and almost always resign themselves to accepting conventional roles in life has less to do radway argues with the women readers fantasies and choices than with their need to deal with a fear of masculine dominance these romance readers resent not only the limited choices in their own lives but the patronizing attitude that men especially express toward their reading tastes in fact women read romances both to protest and to escape temporarily the narrowly defined role prescribed for them by a patriarchal culture paradoxically the books that they read make conventional roles for women seem desirable it is this complex relationship between culture text and woman reader that radway urges feminists to address romance readers she argues should be encouraged to deliver their protests in the arena of actual social relations rather than to act them out in the solitude of the imagination in a new introduction janice radway places the book within the context of current scholarship and offers both an explanation and critique of the study's limitations

dear president trump as you are interested in north korea you will surely be interested in this book margaret atwood on the accusation smuggled out of north korea and now an international sensation the accusation is the work of an anonymous dissident known to us only by the pseudonym bandi bandi s profound vividly characterised stories tell of life under the totalitarian regimes of kim il sung and kim jong il the accusation depicts ordinary men and women facing the horrors of life in a police state a factory supervisor caught between loyalty to an old friend and loyalty to the regime a woman struggling to feed her husband through the great famine the staunch party man whose actor son reveals to him the absurd theatre of their reality a mother raising her child in a world where the all pervasive propaganda is the stuff of nightmare the accusation is a heartbreaking portrayal of everyday life in north korea it is also a reminder that humanity can sustain hope even in the most desperate of circumstances and that the courage of free thought has a power far beyond those who seek to suppress it a historical first the only samizdat writing to have come out of north korea the accusation succeeds in the rare feat of conveying something of what it feels like to be a citizen of the cruellest most repressive country in the world the times

a powerful dystopian vision of a world where money reigns supreme from a world fantasy award winning author an extraordinary novel that stands with the best of dystopian fiction with dashes of the handmaid s tale cory doctorow the penalty for dani cumali s murder 84 000 theo works in the criminal audit office he assesses each crime that crosses his desk and makes sure the correct debt to society is paid in full these days there s no need to go to prison provided that you can afford to pay the penalty for the crime you ve committed if you re rich enough you can get away with murder but dani s murder is different when theo finds her lifeless body and a hired killer standing over her and calmly calling the police to confess he can t let her death become just an entry on a balance sheet someone is responsible and theo is going to find them and make them pay perfect for fans of 1984 and never let me go claire north s moving and unnerving new novel will resonate with readers around the world
