International Trade 2018-01-24 there is a widespread view that world payments imbalances can be remedied through increased demand in surplus countries and reduced demand in deficit countries without any need for real exchange rate changes in fact shifts in demand and real exchange rate adjustment are necessary couplets not substitutes the essential reason for this complementarity is that a much higher fraction of a marginal dollar of us than of foreign spending falls on us output as a result a redistribution of world spending away from the us leads to an excess supply of us goods unless accompanied by a decline in their relative price although some economists believe that the integration of world capital markets somehow eliminates this problem this is a fallacy that confuses accounting identities with behavior the paper also addresses a number of related issues such as the role of budget deficits in determining domestic demand and the effectiveness of nominal exchange rates changes in producing real depreciation
