due to the recent global financial crises academic business schools have come in for much criticism having in the eyes of the public failed in their responsibility to society by teaching future managers only how to increase their personal gain without any consideration as to their actions social and cultural consequences realising that there is a pressing need to innovate their educational offers accordingly business schools are beginning to turn to the humanities and social sciences to improve on the understanding and thus the teaching of management this book is the result of an empirical study conducted at eight academic business schools that either already practise or are beginning to practise linking management education to the humanities and social sciences gathered mostly in interviews our research team conducted during site visits to these schools the material presented shows three major fields of concern how to shift the focus from instrumental to transformative learning how to reframe the concept of disciplinary subject matter towards a more relational understanding of knowledge especially in the light of the impact digitalisation is having on education and how to address the organisational as well as the political consequences of management education turning towards the inclusion of the humanities and social sciences strategically the findings indicate that the humanities and social sciences indeed offer knowledge which can significantly help management education with meeting the challenges of the twenty first century innovating management education by making it part of its program portfolios proves a challenge in and of itself in the face of a university system which still determinedly clings to disciplinary segregation reforming management education towards an engagement with fields of knowledge traditionally at best ignored and at worst vilified as being completely useless in the real world may therefore place academic business schools at the forefront of a movement that is beginning to reshape the educational landscape as a whole this book will be of value to researchers academics and students in the fields of business management studies organisational studies and education studies the idea for this book came about one friday afternoon towards the end of a summer term i was giving the third project tutorial of the afternoon the first had been to a ba business studies student the second to a part time mba student and the third to a student registered on the diploma in personnel management programme and a great variety of issues had been dealt with during the course of the time involved nevertheless i noticed that some of the material was common to all three students i found myself thinking that i was repeating myself and wanting to get through the basics as quickly as possible so that we could move on to the specifics of each particular project which we both each student and i found more interesting to deal with unfortunately the basics were precisely those topics which i considered essential to the success of any project what s more they dealt with the sort of material which wouldn t on the whole have occurred spontaneously to many students and so it was a necessary part of my job to go through them one or two could be dealt with by issuing a handout and the student could be referred to the library for some of the rest but there wasn t a systematic written compilation of all the points that i needed to make academics and managers who strive for a humanistic management education usually care for people but they are challenged by sophisticated intellectual subjects and practical problems the authors experience competence and commitment enables them to present an extensive coverage of important views and an in depth study of these issues eduard bonet esade spain this volume is a timely initiative it resonates with important questions on globalization and its consequences on the unrelenting quest for efficiency and productivity on recent corporate scandals and on the responsibilities of managers and management education this book is a manifesto for an intellectual revolution in a complex and open world managers often bump into the limits of the decontextualized tools associated with mainstream management knowledge and practice managers have to navigate in a world that is not only economic but also political cultural shaped by history and ethical traditions and preoccupations not only as a mark of social capital but really as a way to enhance their managerial skills and efficiency the role of management education should be to prepare them for that odyssey and this volume tells us that humanities could be a powerful tool in that sense this project is served by a highly legitimate international panel of contributors who collectively point towards an alternative for management thinking and management education marie laure djelic essec business school france management education and humanities argues that management teachers and researchers seem to be increasingly dissatisfied with the way managers are usually educated in western countries it claims that educational practices and methods would greatly benefit from reflection on the implicit assumptions and paradigms behind those practices and debates the role that humanism and humanities might play in the formation of new managerial élites the book examines three themes that have emerged as central to the contemporary debate on management education the profession of management humanism as a philosophy and worldview and the humanities as an academic field where management schools could find new inspirations for curricula all three themes are scrutinized in a frame of reference extended between two different points of view the traditional view with its tendency to idealize and even sometimes romanticize humanism the humanities and management as a social function and the past modern view which is inclined to skepticism and to the deconstruction of social and cultural phenomena providing a lively account of this ongoing debate and exploring new trends and experiences in management education this book will be invaluable reading for teachers students and researchers of management management strategy and organizational behaviour political economy themes have directly and indirectly been a central concern of law and legal scholarship ever since political economy emerged as a concept in the early seventeenth century a development which was reinforced by the emergence of political economy as an independent area of scholarly enquiry in the eighteenth century as developed by the french physiocrats this is not surprising in so far as the core institutions of the economy and economic exchanges such as property and contract are legal institutions in spite of this intrinsic link political economy discourses and legal discourses dealing with political economy themes unfold in a largely separate manner indeed this book is also a reflection of this in so far as its core concern is how the law and legal scholarship conceive of and approach political economy issues
