through a series of case studies this third volume in the earth series deals with the technological constraints and innovations that enabled societies to survive and thrive across a range of environmental conditions the contributions are structured into three sections to draw out particular commonalities and contrasts in the choices made by pre industrial communities in the construction of varied landscapes and cultural heritage landnam from the old Norse for taking of land deals with colonisation including the drivers and processes through which colonisers developed an understanding of the productive potential and limitations of their new lands fields and field systems field walls are a distinctive and apparently timeless characteristic of many pre industrial farming landscapes but they present many the challenges to their study such as the effects of ploughing abandonment and land use change and of urban development in fertile lowland zones which may eradicate reduce or conceal past systems of land use and division the importance of indirect and proxy evidence is illustrated and the value of interdisciplinary and modelling approaches emphasised agro pastoralism focuses on the complex time space adaptations devised for managing cultivation and livestock production particularly the need to prevent stock incursions into arable fields during the growing season whilst making effective use of seasonal grazing resources the contributions focus on mountainous areas where temporary migrations in the form of transhumance provided access to a diversity of resources based around seasonal constraints on their availability and productivity the distinguishing characteristic of a metallurgist or ceramist is an ability to work effectively with materials in which the properties depend on the microstructure evolved through prior treatment these effects of prior history are commercially important and usually too complex to yield to any detailed mathematical analysis this book provides an introduction to the concepts used in understanding the evolution of microstructure it stems from a two semester course taught to juniors in metallurgy who had had a prior course dealing with the atomic structure of solids simple crystals defects and the existence of phase diagrams it differs from the several books on physical metallurgy in that it covers fewer topics in more depth the sequence has been chosen to go from the simpler to the more complex thus the material on dislocations and diffusion covered in the first chapters is used again in discussing recovery and solidification the nucleation and solute redistribution concept covered in solidification are used again in treating phase transformation in solids etc the order of chapters and material has been chosen to allow the introduction of as few new concepts per chapter as possible and the reinforcing of these concepts in the students mind by using them again and again in subsequent sections this learning by using probably reaches an extreme in the case of phase diagrams which are not given the customary full development in one chapter but are introduced in chap 4 and then used extensively and further developed in chaps 5 6 7 and 8 in this way the material is presented not in the abstract but as an essential tool in discussing reactions occurring at and near equilibrium
