excerpt from s ancrer the hills toward the west were one black mass their contour broken by a single tree or clump of trees silhouetted against the afterglow of the setting sun the sky where the sun had passed seemed like highly polished gold reflecting the direct rays of the sun from this centre radiated a halo far more beautiful than any mortal could conceive which as it spread toward the south deepened in color to a rich red a few filmy transparent clouds had caught the sun s rays the rest of the heavens were absolutely cloudless aunt ilda and i were alone on the west piazza of brier lodge one sunday afternoon valleys and hills ravines and gulleys lay before us like a panorama we looked down upon stretches of woodland unbroken for miles and miles a house or a bit of farmland on a distant hill mere specks on the landscape though they were reminded us that we were not entirely alone in the world annapolis basin lay to the north of us for our house brier lodge was only a few miles back of bear river there is a wonderful feeling of rest and happiness in the air of nova scotia the natives are contented and peace loving about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
