International Protection of Human Rights: Achievements and Challenges 2006-01-01

at the beginning of the nineties there was an expectation within the human rights community that the next decade would be a period of consolidation for the international human rights regime this did not happen in fact the human rights regime underwent dramatic changes in response to new circumstances we have tried to highlight both the achievements and the challenges ahead in this manual the result of a joint project under the auspices of humanitariannet a thematic network on humanitarian development studies led by the university of deusto bilbao the basque country spain and the european inter university centre for human rights and democratisation eiuc venice italy

The Social Achievements of the Christian Church 2004

first published in 1930 the social achievements of the christian church was one of the first modern surveys of christian social and ethical influence from the time of christ until the 20th century in it edmund oliver argues that the christian church despite numerous and admitted errors in its attempt to influence surrounding culture has nonetheless rendered outstanding social service to the world examples of the church s external influence can be seen in the establishment of hospitals asylums and orphanages in preservation of learning through the formation of universities in caring for the needy and in the philosophical and ethical influence that underpins much of legal and political thought in western culture edmund h oliver 1882 1935 taught history and economics before becoming the principal of st andrew s college in saskatoon and eventually the fourth moderator of the united church of canada during the world war i he served as chaplain to the 196th battalion and the canadian training school and trench warfare school at benhill on sea england he also launched the university of vimy ridge while in england

from the magisterial to the mundane achievements play a role in the best kind of human life and many people think that they are of such importance that they are worth pursuing at the expense of serious sacrifices yet for all that no philosophers have devoted more than a few short passages to discerning what makes achievements valuable or even what makes something an achievement to begin with gwen bradford presents the first systematic account of what achievements are and what it is about them that makes them worth doing it turns out that more things count as achievements than we might have thought and that what makes them valuable isn t something we usually think of as good it turns out that difficulty perhaps surprisingly plays a central part in characterizing achievements and their value achievements are worth the effort but just what does it mean for something to be difficult and why is it valuable a thorough analysis of the nature of difficulty is given and ultimately the best account of the value of achievements taps into perfectionist axiology but not just any perfectionist theory of value will do and in this book we see a new perfectionist theory developed that succeeds in capturing the value of achievement better than its predecessors

china has its own history and success in business with a system of management which is very different to western models china s business methods are receiving more global attention as the chinese economy rises and proves resilient to many international financial problems however chinese business and management are not widely understood outside china the author of this book addresses this issue by discussing western and chinese management practices and exploring how successful management practices can be learned from both models an understanding and appreciation of both western and chinese management is likely to be essential for the corporate leaders of tomorrow the author argues that good management education should not only pay attention to the preaching of theories and techniques but also value the teaching of wisdom and art and thus get a good balance between the two in other words it means keeping a dynamic balance so as to ensure the compatibility of yin and yang and the coexistence of two extremes reaching the final goal of all living creatures growing together without doing harm to one another roads running parallel without interfering with each other this is the so called multi existence mutual generation and restriction harmonious relationship and continuous reproduction path an excellent corporate leader must be equipped with profound knowledge of how to make an organic bond between the western management teachings and chinese traditional culture and help local chinese management models take shape academically speaking the combination of dao ideology culture wisdom art etc and shu regulation system process model tool etc shows us a way of good corporate governance only when leaders effectively find a balance between dao and shu can they walk along the road from excellence to brilliance the author zeng mingbin is from china and has many years working experience in both chinese and foreign enterprises in corporate management consulting and training
