Financial Statements in the United States of America 2015-11-12 nelson fausto the greek myth of prometheus with its picture of a vulture feasting on its chained victim has traditionally provided a visual image of liver regeneration it is a powerful and frightening representation but if one were to substitute the vulture by a surgeon and prometheus by a patient laying on a properly prepared operating table the outcome of the procedure would not differ significantly from that described by greek poets yet few of us who work in the field have stopped long enough to ask where this myth originated did the poet observe a case of liver regeneration in a human being was it brilliant intuition or perhaps literally just a gut feeling of a poet looking for good rhymes that led to the prediction that livers grow when part of the tissue is removed this book does not attempt to solve these historical issues it does instead cover in detail some of the major modern themes of research on liver regeneration injury and repair as indicated in dr n bucher's chapter the modern phase of experimental studies on liver regeneration started in 1931 with the publication by higgins and anderson of a method to perform a two thirds resection of the liver of a rat the technique described has 3 remarkable features 1 it is highly reproducible resulting in the removal of 68 of the liver 2 it has minimal if any mortality and 3 it consists only of blood vessel ligation and does not involve cutting through or wounding hepatic tissue

I centri minori italiani nel tardo Medioevo 2018-01-01 giuliano mussati why do mergers occur which are their effects on social welfare and which is the best economic policy toward them these three questions have been puzzling industrial economists since the end of the last century when the first great merger wave has come about in the us they have returned at the centre of the stage of the theoretical and empirical economic research during the last decade when merger and acquisition activity became one of the most evident firms activities in all industrialised countries being fostered by some general and country specific facts these facts have been identified in the appearance of new financial instruments facilitating fund raising by firms in the benevolent behaviour of the authorities in charge of competition policy during the reagan administration in the us while internal market completion has become a strong incentive for european firms to reach a true continental dimension in the ue through external growth however a robust and univocal answer to these questions has not yet been found in spite of its importance not only from the theoretical point of view but also from the normative one in fact the correct identification of firms motivations in pursuing merger and acquisition operations and of their consequences on social welfare would help the choice by administrative authorities of different possible options in competition and industrial policies

Antitrust between EU law and national law / Antitrust fra diritto nazionale e diritto dell'Unione Europea 2013-02-22 this wide ranging theme takes braudel s concept of the mediterranean as its starting point braudel s vision of an enclosed sea as a geographical opportunity for economic integration between nations with different religions languages and ethnicities and political bodies still functions as a model for studies on a wide range of contexts the goal of the 50th study week was to go beyond the study of individual systems in isolation and to combine instead different analysis of open and enclosed seas or coastal areas in order to understand the integration role played by maritime connections in europe since in pre industrial civilizations water transport was easier than land transport the time has come to bring attention to the way these relationship networks operated both on a european level and with asian and north african trade partners this volume starts from the great research traditions which have however rarely been integrated on a larger and continental scale and analyses them on either a regional or thematic basis immanuel wallerstein has developed braudel s concept by conceptualising its intercultural and transnational dimensions and its role in the system of labour he called it a world system not because it involves the whole world but because it is larger than any legally defined political unit and it is a world economy because the base link between the different parts of the system has an economic nature the various regional research aspects and traditions have been linked together in a coherent approach which aims at evaluating what geographical nautical technical economic legal social and cultural elements influenced the emergence of the various regional networks and how these worked the nature and role of seaports as nodal points of sea routes and of their hinterland through rivers canals and roads the commercial and personal ties between merchants and shipowners in various ports how regional networks connected with each other and how over time they ended up integrating into larger units how private networks initially between merchant and seafarer organizations ended up dealing with local authorities and after their growth with states and empires in order to protect their interests

Mergers, Markets and Public Policy 2012-12-06 this innovative study of the role of competition law in the telecommunications industry starts from a classic perspective while in principle regulation benefits social welfare and efficient allocation of resources past regulatory experience shows that regulation can be flawed and lead to welfare harm rather than good in the telecommunications industry specifically inappropriately designed sector specific remedies and regulatory delays in the introduction of new telecommunications services can hold up the development of the market towards effective competition and could incur considerable welfare losses in addition conventional antitrust analysis still lags behind the dynamic nature of the electronic communications markets milena stoyanova sets out to establish a new understanding of the role of sector specific regulation and competition law enforcement in the electronic communications sector addressing such questions as the following and why a new regulatory framework and are sectoral regulation and competition law enforcement mutually exclusive or complementary and why should electronic communications markets be regulated to conform to competition law principles and what does competition law add to sector specific regulation and what is the relationship or proportion between regulation and competition law enforcement an overview of the telecommunications liberalization process initiated at european community level reveals such problems as a divergent approach of national regulatory authorities in the application of one and the same norms inability of competition authorities to rightly assess the technicalities underlying a competition problem and difficulty in carrying out a periodical oversight of compliance with the competition law remedies the author discusses the legal basis and rationale for the application of the essential facility doctrine to the electronic communications sector and argues for new regulatory responses to the emergence of collective dominant firms in an oligopolistic setting and to the potential of multifirm conduct to restrict competition through price squeezing and other tactics the book concludes with a specific case study on the harmonisation of recent bulgarian legislation with the european community sector specific and competition law regimes andà propos the electronic communications sector effective competition in the electronic communications market is crucial for securing the dynamic role of the entire information and communications technologies sector of which electronic communications form the largest segment the sound and well informed recommendations in this book ably address common and persistent problems making competition problems in liberalized telecommunications a forward looking mainstay for practitioners and other professionals involved in all aspects of the field from an international and comparative perspective young people s access to the labour market is a complex issue with certain contradictory aspects reflecting the level of development of labour law and industrial relations in their respective countries in the most advanced economies there has been a steady increase in the age at which young people exit the educational system and enter the labour market giving rise to significant economic and social problems the increase in levels of educational attainment is associated in some cases with an alarming rate of unemployment among those with academic qualifications while employers encounter considerable difficulty in recruiting workers for unskilled and semi skilled positions the economies of developing countries on the other hand are characterized by different trends reminiscent of the early stages of modern labour law with the large scale exploitation of young workers and children many of whom join the flow of migrants towards the more highly developed regions of the world with the consequent risk of impoverishing human capital in the country of origin the adapt labour studies book series has in connection been set up with a view to achieving a better understanding of these and other issues in the field of labour and employment relations in a global dimension through an interdisciplinary and comparative approach

Economic Multisectoral Modelling Between Past and Future 2013 this volume of the aida europe research series on insurance law and regulation focuses on transparency as the guiding principle of modern insurance law it consists of chapters written by leaders in the respective field who address transparency in a range of civil and common law jurisdictions along with overview chapters each chapter reviews the transparency principles applicable in the jurisdiction discussed whether expressly or impliedly all jurisdictions recognize a duty on the part of the insured to make a fair presentation of the risk when submitting a proposal for cover to the insurers although there is little consensus on the scope of that duty disputed matters in this regard include whether it is satisfied by honest answers to express questions or whether there is a spontaneous duty of disclosure whether facts relating to the insured's character as opposed to the nature of the risk itself are to be presented to the insurers the role of insurance intermediaries in the placement process and the remedy for breach of duty transparency is however a much wider concept potential policyholders are in principle entitled to be made aware of the key terms of coverage and to be warned of hidden traps such as conditions precedent average clauses and excess provisions but there are a range of different approaches some jurisdictions have adopted a soft law approach using codes of practice for pre contract disclosure while other jurisdictions employ the rather nebulous duty of utmost good faith leaving aside placement transparency is also demanded after the policy has been incepted the insured is required to be transparent during the claims process there is less consistency in national legislation regarding the implementation of transparency by insurers in the context of handling claims
