the purpose of the book is to elaborate a planning theory which departs from the plethora of theories which reflect the conditions of developed countries of the north west the empirical material of this effort is derived from a country greece which sits on the edge between north west and south east at the corner of europe no doubt there is extensive international literature on planning theory in general from a bewildering variety of viewpoints the interested professional or student of urban and regional planning is certainly aware of the dizzying flood of books articles and research reports on planning theory and of their never ending borrowing of obscure concepts from more respectable scientific disciplines from mathematics to philosophy and from physics to economics human geography and sociology he or she probably observed that there is a growing interest in theoretical approaches from the viewpoint of the so called global south the author of the present book has for many decades faced the impasse of attempting to transplant theories founded on the experience of the north west to countries with a totally different historical political social and geographical background he learned that the reality that planners face is unpredictable patchy and responsive to social processes frequently of a very pedestrian nature planning strives to deal with private interests which planners are keen to envelop in a single public interest which is extremely hard to define the behaviour of the average citizen far from being that of the neoclassical model of the homo economicus is that of an individual a kind of homo individualis who interacts with the state and the public administration within a complex web of mutual dependence and negotiation the state and its administrative apparatus i e the key determinants and fixers of urban and regional planning policy bargain with this individual offer inducements exemptions derogations and privileges deviate unhesitatingly from their grand policy pronouncements but still defend the rationality and comprehensiveness of the planning system they have legislated and operationalized it is by and large a successful modus vivendi but only thanks to a constant practice of compromise hence the term compromise planning which the author coined as an alternative to all the existing theoretical forms of planning this is the sort of planning and of the accompanying theory with which he deals in this book it is the outcome of experience and knowledge accumulated in a long personal journey of academic teaching in england and greece research and professional involvement this open access publication examines the impact of connected and automated vehicles on the european city and the conditions that can enable this technology to make a positive contribution to urban development the authors argue for two theses that have thus far received little attention in scientific discourse as connected and automated vehicles will not be ready for use in all parts of the city for a long time previously assumed effects from traffic safety to traffic performance as well as spatial effects will need to be re evaluated to ensure this technology has a positive impact on the mobility of the future transport and settlement policy regulations must be adapted and further developed established territorial institutional and organizational boundaries must be investigated and challenged quickly despite or indeed because of the many uncertainties we find ourselves at the beginning of a new design phase not only in terms of technology development but also regarding politics urban planning administration and civil society this report examines the past decisions taken on the typhoon fighter aircraft and looks at improvements that the department can make to its delivery model to get more from industry in terms of reduced costs and better performance in the future the department originally planned to buy 232 aircraft however in light of changed operational requirements and significant funding constraints arising from the pressures of the defence budget it is now ordering 160 aircraft and will retire the 53 oldest aircraft by 2019 leaving a long term fleet of 107 aircraft overall it is costing the department 20 2 billion 3 5 billion more than it first expected to buy a third fewer aircraft this is equivalent to the purchase cost of each aircraft rising by 75 from 72 million to 126 million problems with the availability of spares mean that typhoons are not flying the hours required and the department is forced to cannibalise parts from other aircraft to maximise the number of aircraft available on a given day as a result it is not fully training all its pilots support costs are budgeted at 13 1 billion but could be as high as 16 6 billion across the life of the aircraft the department has identified potential savings of 3 5 billion to keep support costs within budget the department will need to both reduce the cost and increase the timeliness of future collaborative spares and repairs contracts at present the contracts do little to incentivise better industry performance and to penalise failure
