bcala 2023 outstanding contribution to publishing citation award winner the turn of the twentieth century was an extraordinarily difficult period for african americans a time of unchecked lynchings mob attacks and rampant jim crow segregation during these bleak years emma crawford a young african american woman living in pennsylvania corresponded by postcard with friends and family members and collected the cards she received from all over the country her album spanning from 1906 to 1910 and analyzed in emma s postcard album becomes an entry point into a deeply textured understanding of the nuances and complexities of african american lives and the survival strategies that enabled people to make a way from no way as snippets of lived experience eye catching visual images and reflections of historical moments the cards in the collection become sources for understanding not only african american life but also broader american history and culture in emma s postcard album faith mitchell innovatively places the contents of this postcard collection into specific historic and biographical contexts and provides a new interpretation of postcards as life writings a much neglected aspect of scholarship through these techniques a riveting world that is far too little known is revealed and new insights are gained into the perspectives and experience of african americans capping off these contributions the text is a visual feast illustrated with arresting images from the golden age of postcards as well as newspaper clippings and other archival material

17 november 1979 you were reading a somewhat retro loveletter the last in history but you have not yet received it yes its lack or excess of address prepares it to fall into all hands a post card an open letter in which the secret appears but indecipherably what does a post card want to say to you on what conditions is it possible its destination traverses you you no longer know who you are at the very instant when from its address it interpellates you uniquely you instead of reaching you it divides you or sets you aside occasionally overlooks you and you love and you do not love it makes of you what you wish it takes you it leaves you it gives you on the other side of the card look a proposition is made to you s and p socrates and plato for once the former seems to write and with his other hand he is even scratching but what is plato doing with his outstretched finger in his back while you occupy yourself with turning it around in every direction it is the picture that turns you around like a letter in advance it deciphers you it preoccupies space it procures your words and gestures all the bodies that you believe you invent in order to determine its outline you find yourself you yourself on its path the thick support of the card a book heavy and light is also the specter of this scene the analysis between socrates and plato on the program of several others like the soothsayer a fortune telling book watches over and speculates on that which must happen on what it indeed might mean to happen to arrive to have to happen or arrive to let or to make happen or arrive to destine to address to send to legate to inherit etc if it all still signifies between here and there the near and the far da und fort the one or the other you situate the subject of the book between the posts and the analytic movement the pleasure principle and the history of telecommunications the post card and the purloined letter in a word the transference from socrates to freud and beyond this satire of epistolary literature had to be farci stuffed with addresses postal codes crypted missives anonymous letters all of it confided to so many modes genres and tones in it i also abuse dates signatures titles or references language itself j d with the post card as with glas derrida appears more as writer than as philosopher or we could say that here in what is in part a mock epistolary novel the long section is called envois roughly dispatches he stages his writing more overtly than in the scholarly works the post card also contains a series of self reflective essays largely focused on freud in which derrida is beautifully lucid and direct alexander gelley library journal searing images of suicide bombings and retaliatory strikes now define the israeli palestinian conflict for many westerners but television and print media are not the only visual realms in which the conflict is playing out even tourist postcards and greeting cards have been pressed into service as vehicles through which israelis and palestinians present competing visions of national selfhood and conflicting claims to their common homeland in this book tim jon semmerling explores how israelis and palestinians have recently used postcards and greeting cards to present images of the national self to build national awareness and reinforce nationalist ideologies and to gain international acceptance he discusses and displays the works of numerous postcard greeting card manufacturers artists and photographers and identifies the symbolic choices in their postcards how the choices are arranged into messages what the messages convey and to whom and who benefits and loses in these presentations of national self semmerling convincingly demonstrates that far from being ephemeral israeli and palestinian postcards constitute an important arena of struggle over visual signs and the power to produce reality this book reveals how school memories offer not only a tool for accessing the school of the past but also a key to understanding what people today know or think they know about the school of the past it describes in fact how historians work does not purely and simply consist in exploring school as it really was but also in the complex process of defining the memory of school as one developed and revisited over time at both the individual and collective level further it investigates the extent to which what people know reflects the reality or is in fact a product of stereotypes that are deeply rooted in common perceptions and thus exceedingly difficult to do away with the book includes fifteen peer reviewed contributions that were presented and discussed during the international symposium school memories new trends in historical research into education heuristic perspectives and methodological issues seville 22 23 september 2015
