seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject business economics business management corporate governance grade 1 0 university of nottingham language english abstract emotional intelligence is a relatively new model that is as popular as it is controversial this paper gives a short overview over the different definitions models and measurements with supporting as well as critical opinions hereafter the usage of the concept in the leadership theory is explained the essay then continues to appraise the practical application of emotional intelligence it concludes by pointing out that emotional intelligence is a concept with a lot of potential however it is still only very vaguely defined which makes it difficult to use in an academic way and shows the need for more well crafted research to lift the concept from the popular scientific level to scientific and academic credibility in the last 25 years the widely popular concept of emotional intelligence ei arose and underwent a lot of development in the first place the theory implied that emotions are not so much a distraction of the intelligent mind young 1943 but help on the process that is the recognitions und use of one s own and others emotional states to solve problems and regulate behaviour furthermore the right awareness and usage of emotions as they are described in the theory of ei are supposed to be a key attribute especially in the development of leadership skills thus ei is supposed to be the indicator to differentiate a decent or sufficing leader from an excellent one however there is still a vivid debate regarding the two different models of ei which vary in their definitions dimensions and ways of measuring furthermore emotional intelligence is a very controversial theory in terms of its significance as well as the validity of its measurements we have long been taught that emotions should be felt and expressed in carefully controlled ways and then only in certain environments and at certain times this is especially true when at work particularly when managing others it is considered terribly unprofessional to express emotion while on the job and many of us believe that our biggest mistakes and regrets are due to our reactions at those times when our emotions get the better of us david r caruso and peter salovey believe that this view of emotion is not correct the emotion centers of the brain they argue are not relegated to a secondary place in our thinking and reasoning but instead are an integral part of what it means to think reason and to be intelligent in the emotionally intelligent manager they show that emotion is not just important but absolutely necessary for us to make good decisions take action to solve problems cope with change and succeed the authors detail a practical four part hierarchy of emotional skills identifying emotions using emotions to facilitate thinking understanding emotions and managing emotions and show how we can measure learn and develop each skill and employ them in an integrated way to solve our most difficult work related problems emotional intelligence the emotional intelligence book emotional intelligence at work and emotional intelligence leadership this emotional intelligence book will answer the question what is emotional intelligence also referred to as ei as the book works to define emotional intelligence through the four main branches it dives deeper into explaining each branch in hopes of bringing about a higher self awareness in the reader most people walk around with low emotional intelligence out of ignorance they do not know because they have never been taught some crowds believe that the emotionally intelligent are as smart as those with high iq s people in positions of leadership show a higher aptitude of ei for being able to help others to calm the crowd and to work well under pressure without cracking each of the four branches of the emotional intelligence theory is explained in full detail the first branch is emotional perception the second branch is emotional reasoning the third branch is emotional understanding and the fourth branch is emotional management each branch has an explanation on how to do it how to perceive how to reason how to understand and how to manage the emotions in learning this we can then learn how to improve emotional intelligence emotional intelligence training helps to make leaders out of people and helps people to learn more about themselves and they will learn how to handle their emotions a person with a high level of emotional intelligence has learned how to control their reaction to their emotions and they can also help others with their responses to emotions the emotional intelligence definition shows that we are whole people who have emotions and will go through emotional times but that we can control our reaction and responses to these emotions instead of allowing the emotions to show as raw and out of control
