Opera in the Media Age 2014-05-12

it dominates our lives it is the twentieth century medium and yet we re all a little sheepish when it comes to television disowning it by disavowal or by inventing subtle innocuous disguises for it why is this in this book first published in 1982 peter conrad argues that our unease stems from the way that the medium works it absorbs the messages it transmits it invents a reality of its own and ends by luring the world into the confines of its box television s achievement is to have estranged us from the reality which it puports to represent but which it actually refracts this invasion of our lives is monitored and projected in programmes designed to ape the human routine following a discussion of television as furniture peter conrad explores its various versions of reality the simulated conversation of the talk show the competitive consumerism of the games the messianic commercials the eventless protraction of the soap operas and the camera's incitement of happenings which the television calls news the automotive industry currently faces huge challenges the fundamental technological paradigm it relies on volume production has become progressively more unprofitable in the face of increasingly segmented niche markets at the same time it faces increasing regulatory and social pressures to improve both the sustainability of its products and methods of production building on a wealth of research the automotive industry and the environment addresses those challenges and how they can be met in producing a sustainable and profitable industry for the future the authors first discuss the development of the automotive industry and the problems it currently faces they then consider the solutions the industry can adopt the book reviews trends in more environmentally friendly technologies such as the use of more sustainable fuel sources and new types of modular design with built in recyclability however these technologies can only be fully exploited if methods of manufacture change the book also describes models of decentralised production particularly the micro factory retailing mfr model which provide an alternative to volume production and promise to be both more sustainable and more profitable the automotive industry and the environment provides both a cogent diagnosis of the environmental and other problems facing the industry and a blueprint for a better future it will be widely welcomed by the industry policy makers and all those concerned with sustainable transport addresses the challenges facing the automotive industry from the increasing unprofitability of volume production to regulatory and social pressures to improve environmental and product sustainability examines how the automotive industry can meet the current challenges in producing a sustainable and profitable industry for the future reviews trends in more environmentally friendly technologies such as the use of more sustainable fuel sources and new types of modular design with built in recyclability

Motor Vehicle Safety Defect Recall Campaigns 1979

the current economic crisis is cutting the automotive sector to the quick public authorities worldwide are now faced with requests for providing loans and accepting guarantees and even for putting large automotive companies under state control assessing the long term benefits of such help and weighing the needs of different sectors against each other poses a major challenge for the national policies given the upcoming change of customer preferences and state regulations towards safety sustainability and comfort of a car the automotive industry is particularly called to prove its ability to make necessary innovations available in order to accelerate its pace to come out of the crisis consequently the green car is assuming a prominent role in the current debate various power train concepts are currently under discussion for the green car including extremely optimised internal combustion engines hybrid drives and battery electric traction electrical cars are the most appealing option because they are free of local emissions and provide the opportunity to use primary energy from sources other than crude oil for transport well to wheel analysis show that their green house gas emissions can be rated negligibly small if electricity from renewable sources like wind and solar is used
