excerpt from college and the future essays for the undergraduate on problems of character and intellect there is no enlargement unless there be a comparison of ideas one with another as they come before the mind and a systematizing of them we feel our minds to be growing and expanding then when we not only learn but refer what we learn to what we know already cardinal newman the object of this volume is to present a set of essays which form a close sequence of ideas a little philosophy about the present interests and the future problems of the undergraduate it is hoped that he may find in them a series of facts and opinions that will be naturally productive of further opinions and investigation on his part the chief intention of the book is to be gathered from the order of the essays which enables the writer of themes to proceed from one discussion to another logically resulting discussion accumulating thought instead of writing himself out in rather scattered and casual efforts owing to the variety of the materials which illustrate many kinds of writing he has an unusual chance to gain true impressions of manner and method because he can here see what different styles do for the drift of the same general argument the essays make chapters of a book that may be read from cover to cover as a unit a brief commentary will serve here better than elsewhere to describe some of its practical uses as a text for courses in writing about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
