I. E. -Music Listen Today 2002-07-01

an idealized image of european concert goers has long prevailed in historical overviews of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries this act of listening was considered to be an invisible and amorphous phenomenon a naturally given mode of perception this narrative influenced the conditions of listening from the selection of repertoire to the construction of concert halls and programmes however as listening moved from the concert hall to the opera house street music and jazz venues new and visceral listening traditions evolved in turn the art of listening was shaped by phenomena of the modern era including media innovation and commercialization this handbook asks whether how and why practices of music listening changed as the audience moved from pleasure gardens and concert venues in the eighteenth century to living rooms in the twentieth century and mobile devices in the twenty first through these questions chapters enable a differently conceived history of listening and offer an agenda for future research it is undeniable that technology has made a tangible impact on the nature of musical listening the new media have changed our relationship with music in a myriad of ways not least because the experience of listening can now be prolonged at will and repeated at any time and in any space moreover among the more striking social phenomena ushered in by the technological revolution one cannot fail to mention music s current status as a commodity and popular music s unprecedented global reach in response to these new social and perceptual conditions the act of listening has diversified into a wide range of patterns of behaviour which seem to resist any attempt at unification concentrated listening the form of musical reception fostered by western art music now appears to be but one of the many ways in which audiences respond to organized sound cinema for example has developed specific ways of combining images and sounds and more recently digital technology has redefined the standard forms of mass communication information is aestheticized and music in turn is incorporated into pre existing symbolic fields this volume the first in the series musical cultures of the twentieth century offers a wide ranging exploration of the relations between sound technology and listening practices considered from the complementary perspectives of art music and popular music music theatre and multimedia composition and performance listening to music is not merely something one does but something central to a way of living listening has the power to transport one into another way of being it is a mode of feeling and forms the bedrock of deep emotion written from the viewpoint of a philosophy of sensibility matthew del nevo notes that this perspective may not be in fashion but it follows a long tradition del nevo emphasizes the aesthetic experience of listening to art music as it has developed and disintegrated in western civilization he recognizes a deep psychological element to what he calls soul or more accurately sensibility he addresses music in a non technical way taking up the powerful art theory of charles baudelaire the music philosophy of schopenhauer and richard wagner and takes a strong critical stand against modernist intellectual art music the importance of this book for the musically literate reader is its insight into the metaphysics of nostalgia this comprehension is missing from nearly all musical instruction because we have lost sight of it del nevo asserts that this understanding must be brought back into our culture and since this is a book about listening to art music it is no less about sensibility and its cultivation which in its object form we call culture an engaging book art music will appeal to those interested in music culture and philosophy

Worship: from Praise Him to Praise Hymn

2016-10-17

this book examines the relationship between narrative film and reality as seen through the lens of on screen classical concert performance by investigating these scenes wherein the performance of music is foregrounded in the narrative winters uncovers how concert performance reflexively articulates music s importance to the ontology of film the book asserts that narrative film of a variety of aesthetic approaches and traditions is no mere copy of everyday reality but constitutes its own filmic reality and that the music heard in a film's underscore plays an important role in distinguishing film reality from the everyday as a result concert scenes are examined as sites for provocative interactions between these two realities in which real world musicians appear in fictional narratives and an audience's suspension of disbelief is problematized in blurring the musical experiences of onscreen observers and participants these concert scenes also allegorize music's role in creating a shared subjectivity between film audience and character and prompt winters to propose a radically new vision of music's role in narrative cinema wherein musical underscore becomes part of a shared audio visual space that may be just as accessible to the characters as the music they encounter in scenes of concert performance from 1940 to 1990 new machines and devices radically changed listening to music small and large single records new kinds of jukeboxes and loudspeaker systems not only made it possible to playback music in a different way they also evidence a fundamental transformation of music and listening itself taking the media and machines through which listening took place during this period listening devices develops a new history of listening although these devices were and often still are easily accessible up to now we have no concept of them to address this gap this volume proposes the term listening device in conjunction with this concept the book develops an original and fruitful method for exploring listening as a historical subject that has been increasingly organized in relation to technology case studies of four listening devices are the points of departure for the analysis which leads the reader down unfamiliar paths traversing the popular sound worlds of 1950s rock n roll culture and the disco and club culture of the 1970s and 1980s despite all the characteristics specific to the different listening devices they can nevertheless be compared because of the fundamental similarities they share they model and manage listening they actively mediate between the listener and the music heard and it is this mediation that brings both listener and the music listened to into being ultimately however the intention is that the listening devices themselves should not be heard so that the music they playback can be heard thus they take the history of listening to its very limits and confront it with its other a history of non listening the book proposes listening device as a key concept for sound studies popular music studies musicology and media studies with this conceptual key a new productive understanding of past music and sound cultures of the pre digital era can be unlocked and not least of the listening culture of the digital present
