Policy guide to improve water productivity in small-scale agriculture 2020-05-01

in developing countries further progress of irrigation is essential for increasing food security and farmers income however developing small scale schemes remains a challenge due to multiple factors that must be taken into consideration such as diversity of small scale schemes a large number of water users social disharmony over the water use varying water demands of multi cropping systems heterogeneity of equipment over the scheme furthermore on farm irrigation development has a major role in enhancing agricultural water management awm the previous development methods considered the improvement of single factor productivity but agriculture is undergoing a global shift from the single objective of outputs such as yield or net income to multiple objectives of increasing outputs while conserving natural resources many pathways towards enhancement of water productivity wp are directly related to improving overall farm agronomic management irrigation fertilization plant density plant protection etc while external measures must be applied to ensure sustainability of introduced good practices lack of input markets scarce knowledge poor infrastructures water regulations etc thus introducing irrigation practices to farmers must undergo a step wise process to ensure that costs do not outweigh achievable benefits and both institutional and technical environment are capable to sustain results this is the case in smallholders schemes where farmers are poorly resourced in order to address these issues the current policy guide presents a combined methodology which involves practical experiences drawn from fao work in the three countries as well as researchers results to line up a set of feasible measures to improving wp

Policy guide to improve water use efficiency in small-scale agriculture 2019-11-27

this policy guide is drawn from the results of the fao project strengthening agricultural water efficiency and productivity at the african and global level funded by the swiss agency for development and cooperation sdc the long term vision of the project was that the in country findings and processes which are of common nature can be synthesized and scaled up to other countries in a regional cooperation process and globally this will eventually lead to the increase of investment in agricultural water management awm in the targeted countries and beyond that is socially equitable profitable at the farm level economically viable environmentally neutral or positive and sustainable the guide focuses on the specific component of enhancing water use efficiency at small scale irrigation as one of the major outputs of the project while creating and implementing water use efficiency wue measures at field level existing policy frameworks were mapped and analyzed and recommendations were defined as scalable policy instruments with the aim to demonstrate case specific experiences to the collectively agreed goal of using water resources efficiently

Field guide to improve crop water productivity in small-scale agriculture 2020-04-01

by 2050 the world's population will reach 9.1 billion which requires an increase of food production by 70 percent compared to 2005. FAO 2018: nearly all the increase will occur in developing countries where agriculture plays a major role to provide employment income and to improve food security. One of the major challenges of increasing food supply is the limited water resources. Agriculture as the driver of freshwater exploitation has therefore to be transformed into more resource efficient production. FAO 2003: the world's limited freshwater resources are potentially threatened by the expansion of agriculture. Increasing the potential output per amount of water used is an appropriate practice to improve production efficiency while protecting water resources. Therefore, increasing the productivity of agricultural water use in a sustainable manner is essential to ultimately sustain the social and economic conditions of livelihoods. Crop water productivity has grown into one of the major approaches to cope with water scarcity and advance crop water relation. The number of conceptual frameworks and implications is ample but there is always a growing need to review the step by step approach. Beyond in this field guide, practical pathways are presented to provide a comprehensive approach for assessing and improving crop water productivity in small scale agriculture. The field guide draws lessons learned in three countries: Burkina Faso, Morocco and Uganda within the framework of FAO project strengthening agricultural water efficiency and productivity at the African and global level funded by Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation SDC.

Maximize Your Luck 2023-02-09

Luck is often thought of as a matter of chance, but it's much more than that. Our luck is actually shaped by the choices we make in life, our daily actions and decisions, big and small, make up who we are and attract the people, situations and opportunities we encounter. This doesn't have to do with natural talent or success, but rather the way we see and interact with the world by focusing on the small details and choices on the periphery rather than just the core. We open ourselves up to a world of possibilities and create our own luck.
