the flying inn may be briefly characterised as a narrative comic opera it follows the gilbertian formula of satirising actual anomalies by carrying them out quite logically to burlesque extremes and the resemblance is heightened by the serio comic songs with which the characters regale one another throughout the story mr chesterton takes prohibition for his point of attack as it might have been chancery or aestheticism or the admiralty and his fantasy develops out of the ridiculous facts with the same methodical madness the same wild precision of logic which make patience and iolanthe and pinafore a dithering delight the aristocrat of the hour becoming fanatical upon the subject of the higher orientalism enacts that no alcohol shall be sold except under the sign of a licensed inn which license is of course refused except to a few highly expensive establishments but just as the last inn of old england is about to be torn down along comes a wild irish captain who is a friend of the innkeeper plucks up the sign and away they go taking with them a cheese and a keg of rum and a delectable bull pup who rejoices in the name of quoodle

the great sea dragon of the changing colours that wriggles round the world like a chameleon waspale green as it washed on pebblewick but strong blue where it broke on the ionian isles one of the innumerable islets hardly more than a flat white rock in the azure expanse was celebrated as the isle of olives not because it was rich in such vegetation but because by some freak of soil or climate two or three little olives grew there to an unparalleled height even in the full heat of the south it is very unusual for an olive tree to grow any taller than a small pear tree but the three olives that stood up as signals on this sterile place might well be mistaken except for the shape for moderate sized pines or larches of the north it was also connected with some ancient greek legend about pallas the patroness of the olive for all that sea was alive with the first fairyland of hellas and from the platform of marble under the olive trees could be seen the grey outline of ithaca on the island and under the trees was a table set in the open air and covered with papers and inkstands at the table were sitting four men two in uniform and two in plain black clothes aides de camps equerries and such persons stood in a group in the background and behind them a string of two or three silent battle ships lay along the sea for peace was being given to europe there had just come to an end the long agony of one of the many unsuccessful efforts to break the strength of turkey and save the small christian tribes there had been many other such meetings in the later phases of the matter as one after another the smaller nations gave up the struggle or the greater nations came in to coerce them but the interested parties had now dwindled to these four for the powers of europe being entirely agreed on the necessity for peace on a turkish basis were content to leave the last negotiations to england and germany who could be trusted to enforce it there was a representative of the sultan of course and there was a representative of the only enemy of the sultan who had not hitherto come to terms
