teaming up with corporate titans of the phonograph industry to package and distribute their old time gospel messages across the country their nationally marketed folk sermons received an enthusiastic welcome by consumers at times even outselling top billing jazz and blues artists such as Bessie Smith and Ma Rainey these phonograph preachers significantly shaped the development of black religion during the interwar period playing a crucial role in establishing the contemporary religious practices of commodification broadcasting and celebrity yet the fame and reach of these nationwide media ministries came at a price as phonograph preachers became subject to the principles of corporate America in preaching on wax Lerone A. Martin offers the first full length account of the oft overlooked religious history of the phonograph industry he explains why a critical mass of African American ministers teamed up with the major phonograph labels of the day how and why black consumers eagerly purchased their religious records and how this phonograph religion significantly contributed to the shaping of modern African American Christianity
