guidance notes for the ice conditions of contract for archaeological investigation

Linear Algebra with Applications

an archaeological investigation is usually undertaken to provide information in response to a proposed development which could cause damage to archaeological remains as part of the planning process within the framework of appropriate national planning policy guidance notes and or development plan policy as part of an environmental impact assessment in connection with management plans and mitigation strategies of private local and national or international bodies outside the planning process e g infrastructure projects ecclesiastical development coastal erosion agriculture forestry and countryside management works by public utilities and statutory undertakers where the investigation finds archaeological remains they are recorded analysed and interpreted and the findings disseminated as appropriate these conditions of contract the first of its kind regulate the business relationship between the employer and the specialist archaeological contractor during the course of an archaeological investigation the contract retains a pattern traditional in civil engineering contracts with an investigation commissioned by an employer landowners developers etc designed or approved by an engineer and carried out by a specialist archaeological contractor only that the term consultant is used instead of engineer its advantages include providing parties to the contract with an advanced warning of circumstances that may give rise to additional costs or delay or which may warrant a significant change to the scope of the investigation enabling the minimisation of additional cost and or delay as well as potential for dispute minimising the incidence of disputes and resolving those that may arise in a speedy and non confrontational manner on that basis that many archaeological contracts will fall within the provisions of part 2 of the housing grants construction and regeneration act 1996 this contract has been drafted to comply with the legislation with the intention that the various statutory schemes for construction contracts should not apply
