early twentieth century iran had been dominated by the competing influences of the two great imperial powers of the time russia and britain making it difficult for a third power to establish a foothold but an emergent highly industrialised and assertive germany in the 1930s became an attractive ally through which iran could cut loose from domination by britain and the soviet union allowing it to seek modernity outside the constraints of old imperial interests this led to the development of close commercial ties between reza shah s persia and hitler s germany in the interwar period an aspect of german foreign policy that is often overlooked it was the national bank of persia established in 1927 under german management and with kurt lindenblatt as its governor that was to be the vehicle for germany s commercial expansion into iran the bank was a vital engine driving industrialisation even after lindenblatt retired and was followed by gholam reza amir khosrari and a board of directors including hossein ala and abdul hossein hazhir by the mid 1930s a new german foreign policy approach of active diplomacy fortified initial inroads into the iranian economy building upon the foundations laid by individual entrepreneurs the national bank and the construction of the trans iranian railway iran evolved into an attractive country for international trade and at the outbreak of world war ii germany was iran s largest trading partner surpassing both the soviet union and britain these close ties reveal a complex relationship between germany and iran and an admiration of the nazi s brand of industrial scientific and organisational progress it was however a relationship that came to an abrupt end with the allied invasion of iran in 1941 that deposed the shah khatib shahidi delves into previously untapped german primary sources to explore the nature of german involvement in iran between the wars examining how it came to be moulded by a handful of individuals this book is a revealing resource on the historical ties between iran and germany making it indispensable for students and researchers of european imperialism and colonialism in the middle east as well as of iranian political and economic history for civil aviation to progress it has never been just about technology and business practices to go from the rudiments of the early services that plied across short distances in europe and america to what we experience today required most of all that politicians and policy makers address the central problems of national sovereignty over air space and national ownership and control over airlines those problems have plagued the development of seamless and efficient air services for consumers in the international sphere one would have thought that international airlines might have led the way towards a uniform globalized system given the nature of their enterprise but that has definitely not been the case sovereignty and security issues have more often than not trumped commercial arguments for a more level playing field for international airlines there has thus been an on going tussle between sovereignty state security and mercantilist practices on the one hand and the ambition for civil aviation to flourish on the other as one early commentator put it one is convinced that the sovereign state cannot be left without authority over what happens just above its territory but one shrinks from the idea that aerial navigation could be the object of narrow minded restrictions how those narrow minded restrictions were gradually eroded though still not eliminated to enable civil aviation to flourish is at the heart of this work this book will be of direct interest to students of aviation modern history international relations and transport it is also of value to airline industry professionals and government transport departments
