high stakes public examinations exert a dominant influence in most education systems they affect both teacher and student behavior especially at the middle and upper levels of secondary education the content of past examinations tends to dictate what is taught and how it is taught and more important what is learned and how it is learned by changing aspects of these examinations especially their content and format education systems can have a strong positive impact on teacher behavior and student learning help raise student achievement levels and better prepare students for tertiary level education and for employment examination agencies many of which have followed the same procedures over decades can learn from the successes and failures of other systems this book addresses current issues related to the development administration scoring and usage of these high stakes public examinations identifying key issues and problems related to examinations in many emerging market economies as well as in advanced economies the book's primary audience consists of public examination officials on national regional and state examination boards but the book should also be of interest to senior education policy makers concerned with certification and learning achievement standards to academics and researchers interested in educational assessment to governmental and education agencies responsible for student selection and to professionals at development organizations this extremely well written and comprehensive book offers a timely review of the diversity of public examination practices worldwide of the tensions between examinations and learning and of the technical expertise involved in the creation of valid reliable and fair assessments it reminds us that as the diploma disease takes hold with an ever greater intensity at every stage of education worldwide and the commercial business of testing flourishes those concerned with educational quality and meaningful learning must be on guard to prevent the assessment tail wagging the educational dog this book investigates and analyses critical issues in education reform and discusses possible pitfalls in the current global drive to promote excellence instead of documenting the successes and frustrations encountered by education reformers in specific jurisdictions this book aims to offer directions for education reformers and sets out to be prescriptive rather than descriptive while the cases covered here are focused on hong kong they are no less useful in throwing light upon the direction of education reform all over the world the first section of the volume conceptual framework provides the theoretical underpinnings for the design and implementation of education reform the next two sections reform of tertiary education and experiments dilemmas and risks in secondary schools look at reform at the tertiary and secondary levels in greater detail the final section ideals vs reality the interplay of diverse interests and diverse perceptions looks at the conflicting goals and perceptions of different stakeholders with a concluding chapter that summarizes the main lessons to be learnt this book will be of interest to scholars educators parents policymakers politicians and all who are concerned about our younger generation and their future the editors lok sang ho paul morris and yue ping chung are to be congratulated on producing a volume which is both hard hitting and insightful about education reforms in hong kong the range of experiences of the contributing authors contribute to a most interesting mix of perspectives about education reform the focus is squarely on hong kong in terms of general policy and reform issues followed by more specific chapters dealing with issues of graduate teachers english as a medium of instruction and the role of the media however the issues raised are very applicable to many countries this book is a valuable contribution to the literature on education reform professor colin j marsh curtin university perth western australia

it is seventeen years since i first formulated the paradox of the chinese learner in a conference in kathmandu nepal my original formulation of the paradox was that westerners saw chinese students as rote learning massive amounts of information in fierce exam dominated classrooms yet in international comparisons students in the confucian heritage classrooms greatly outperformed western students learning in progressive western classrooms this seeming paradox raised all sorts of questions to which many others have contributed important answers especially that by ference marton on how chinese learners construed the roles of memory and understanding in ways that were foreign to typical western educators much of this work was brought together in the chinese learner 1996 edited by david watkins and myself that work raised more questions still especially about educational contexts beliefs and practices which were investigated in contributions to teaching the chinese learner 2001 and now we have revisiting the chinese learner which is a very timely collection of excellent contributions that take into account the many changes that have taken place since 2001 changes such as 1 the globalisation of education especially through educational technology and enormous socio economic changes especially in china itself 2 changes in educational policy aims curriculum and organisation and decentralisation of educational decision making in many confucian heritage cultures 3
