Remaking the Italian Economy 2018-09-05

Why was early modern Europe the starting point of the economic expansion which led to the industrial revolution? What was the state's role in this momentous transformation? A history of states and economic policies in early modern Europe takes a comparative approach to answer these questions, demonstrating that wars, public finance and state intervention in the economy were the key elements underlying European economic dynamics of the era. Structured in two parts, the book begins by examining the central issues of the state-economy relationship, including military revolution, the fiscal state and public finance, mercantilism, the formation of commercial empires and the economic war between Britain and France in the 1700s. The second part presents a detailed comparison between the different economic policies of the most important European states, looking at their unique demographic, economic, military and institutional contexts. Taken as a whole, this work provides a valuable analysis of early modern economic history and a picture of Europe's global position on the eve of the industrial revolution. This book will be useful to students and researchers of economic history, early modern history and European history.

This research, carried out in original documents by the World Bank, which were intended exclusively for internal use and were made available to scholars only a few years ago, tackles the theme of the extraordinary intervention in Southern Italy from an international perspective. The book provides an updated view of the issues concerning the regions of Southern Italy, as well as the solutions proposed for the Southern Question during the years of the post-war reconstruction of Italy, creating the only period of convergence considering the whole of the history of United Italy between Southern and Northern Italy and between the entire country and the most advanced Western economies during the Golden Age. The volume enhances our understanding of such a decisive development phase, especially within the framework of both Italian and international economic history, following the peacetime rebuilding of Italy and before the crisis of the 1970s, while providing very useful elements in order to analyse the current events of both the Mezzogiorno and all of Italy.

First published in 1999, this volume aims to describe and analyse the experience of cost containment in Europe over the last fifteen years in order to understand that experience and to determine as best we can which methods were successful and which were not. Part I provides an overview of healthcare in the European Union, an overview of recent expenditure trends. Part II complements the first, examining in detail cost containment policies.

in each eu member state the country based chapters refer to developments up to mid 1997

nelson fausto the greek myth of prometheus with its picture of a vulture feasting on its chained victim has traditionally provided a visual image of liver regeneration it is a powerful and frightening representation but if one were to substitute the vulture by a surgeon and prometheus by a patient laying on a properly prepared operating table the outcome of the procedure would not differ significantly from that described by greek poets yet few of us who work in the field have stopped long enough to ask where this myth originated did the poet observe a case of liver regeneration in a human being was it brilliant intuition or perhaps literally just a gut feeling of a poet looking for good rhymes that led to the prediction that livers grow when part of the tissue is removed this book does not attempt to solve these historical issues it does instead cover in detail some of the major modern themes of research on liver regeneration injury and repair as indicated in dr n bucher s chapter the modern phase of experimental studies on liver regeneration started in 1931 with the publication by higgins and anderson of a method to perform a two thirds resection of the liver of a rat the technique described has 3 remarkable features 1 it is highly reproducible resulting in the removal of 68 of the liver 2 it has minimal if any mortality and 3 it consists only of blood vessel ligation and does not involve cutting through or wounding hepatic tissue

Women and Migration in Contemporary Italian Cinema Screening Hospitality puts gender at the centre of cinematic representations of contemporary transnational Italian identities it offers an intersectional feminist analysis of the ways in which transnational migration has been represented understood and constructed in the contemporary cinema of Italy drawing on Jacques Derrida's notion of hospitality and in dialogue with postcolonial and decolonial theory queer studies and feminist critiques the six chapters of the book focus on a series of exemplary fiction films from the last twenty years which both reflect and shape the nation's responses to the growing presence of transnational migrants in Italian society the book shows how questions of gender sexual difference and reproductivity have been central to Italian filmmakers' approaches to stories of mobility and displacement gender is also enmeshed in the rhetoric and poetics of hospitality that filmmakers propose as a critical framework to condemn Italian border policies and politics women and migration in contemporary Italian cinema screening hospitality traces an arc that moves from the embrace of a humanitarian rhetoric of infinite hospitality toward migrants apparent in films produced in the early 2000s to a more fluid understanding of Italian identities from a transnational perspective
