book is about the rationale practice and classroom implementation of english medium instruction courses in chinese universities it specifically focuses on classroom discourse analysis across different disciplines and settings the main themes of this book are describing the state educational policies toward english medium instruction at the tertiary level distinguishing english medium instruction from mainstream foreign language learning analyzing curricula and discourse at the classroom level and evaluating the learning effectiveness of these courses this book covers the widespread implementation of english medium courses in china across different disciplines and it provides a window for researchers and practitioners from other parts of the world to see the curriculum design lesson planning discourse features and teacher student interaction in english medium classrooms in china contributors to this volume consists of a panel of highly respected researchers in the fields of bilingual education english medium instruction classroom discourse analysis and language program evaluation chapters include balance of content and language in english medium instruction classrooms english medium instruction in a math classroom an observation study of classroom discourse asking and answering questions in emi classrooms what is the cognitive and syntactic complexity level this two volume handbook provides a comprehensive examination of policy practice research and theory related to english language teaching in international contexts more than 70 chapters highlight the research foundation for best practices frameworks for policy decisions and areas of consensus and controversy in second language acquisition and pedagogy the handbook provides a unique resource for policy makers educational administrators and researchers concerned with meeting the increasing demand for effective english language teaching it offers a strongly socio cultural view of language learning and teaching it is comprehensive and global in perspective with a range of fresh new voices in english language teaching research cognitive linguistics takes an experientialist approach towards language emphasizing the centrality of physical experience for cognitive development that is cognition is regarded as embodied and language as part of the human cognitive system is shaped by how human beings interact with their physical and social environment thus language is usage based and form meaning mappings can be explained and systematized on the basis of their conceptual motivation despite the pedagogical potential of this theory cognitive linguistic applications in foreign language teaching and learning are still in their initial stages and empirical research testing the effect of cognitive linguistic teaching approaches in real classroom settings is rather scarce the aim of this monograph is to provide insight into key tenets of the cognitive linguistic framework under the premise of their relevance for foreign language pedagogy empirical studies are presented focusing on how phrasal verbs can be taught from a cognitive linguistic perspective via awareness raising methods based on statistical analyses and considering individual learner variables such as language aptitude cognitive load and how students evaluated their own learning outcome the author discusses the merits of a cognitive linguistic approach to phrasal verbs the english language proficiency pre test identifies student elp completes a student profile include reading writing listening for guidance and useful tips the resource also contains links to downloadable answer sheets so that the tests can be re sat these practice papers are part of galore park s 11 revision series which provides a three step learning journey that teaches children the skills needed to pass rigorous school entrance exams it is largely accepted in the relevant literature that successful learning of one or more non native languages is affected by a number of factors that are independent of the target language s per se these factors include the age of acquisition aoa of the target language s the type and amount of formal instruction the learners have received as well as the amount of language use that the learners demonstrate recent experimental evidence suggests that one crucial factor for efficient native like performance in the non native language is the amount of naturalistic exposure or immersion that the learners receive to that language this can be broadly defined as the degree to which language learners use their non native language outside the classroom and for their day to day activities and usually presupposes that the learners live in an environment where their non native language is exclusively or mostly used existing literature has suggested that linguistic immersion can be beneficial for lexical and semantic acquisition in a non native language as well as for non native morphological and syntactic processing more recent evidence has also suggested that naturalistic learning of a non native language can also have an impact on the patterns of brain activity underlying language processing as well as on the structure of brain regions that are involved expressed as changes in the grey matter structure this research topic brings together studies on the effects of learning and speaking a non native language in a naturalistic environment these include more efficient or native like processing in behavioural tasks tapping on language lexicon morphology syntax as well as changes in the brain structure and function as revealed by neuroimaging studies the english language proficiency pre test identifies student elp completes a student profile include reading writing listening and speaking and places students into beginner intermediate advanced advanced high groups this book illustrates the developments of task based language teaching tbtl approaches in relation to the evolution of digital technologies it highlights how technology mediated tbtl principles can support english as a foreign language efl learning and contribute to understanding new classroom dynamics drawing from the key theoretical concepts of tbtl the author discusses the integration of tasks and technologies from a secondary education perspective which is often under represented in the tbtl literature morgana looks at how the efl secondary classroom has been recently re conceptualised as a social place whose boundaries go far behind the traditional school settings this book provides theoretical approaches and classroom implementation practices by presenting four case studies on the different 12 skills reading writing listening and speaking the volume is organised into two main sections the first section focuses on the theoretical approaches to tbtl and highlights the key concepts behind this methodology this section also looks at the recent development of a technology mediated tbtl framework and its implementations in various efl educational contexts the second section presents four case studies of secondary school efl learners in italy each case study focuses on a different language skill providing examples of classroom practices in both blended and online learning settings pedagogical recommendations for teachers are provided at the end of each case study the book adopts a multimodal approach and aims at providing scholars in applied linguistics and tbtl practitioners with theories and implementation practices to understand the ways technologies are shaping tasks and mediating students learning processes innovative insights for english language teaching methodology lean this volume of specially commissioned articles
